

Benefits for high schools

By BOB SHEUE
Special to The Democrat-Capital

Besides providing an expanded permanent facility for arts and science study, the $5.5 million bond package patrons of the State Fair Community College will vote on Tuesday contains an area vocational building which will increase the program offerings not only on a post-secondary level, but also for many area high school youths.

Required by the State Department of Education to provide a certain number of vocational credit units by July 1, 1976, to attain AA and AAA status, SFCC district high schools are faced with providing vocational classes individually, or having SFCC do it at a much lower cost.

For the individual districts, it is not a financial case of "six of one or a half dozen of the other," but rather a case of six being equal to 12 — or perhaps even more.

"Financing such requirements (vocational education) on an individual district basis would be extremely expensive."

Designated as an area vocational school by the State Department of Education since May, 1968, SFCC has embarked on a vigorous vocational-technical training program which now extends into the public school districts in Pettis and Benton Counties. That program embraces study offerings in health occupations, business and office work, agriculture, building trades, welding, auto mechanics and electronics. Next fall, 190 area high school students will be taking advantage of the three-hour blocks of instruction the junior college offers. Smith-Cotton and Sacred Heart have 91 of the "slots" in the program, since the preponderance of population in the two-county district is in the school district boundaries of those schools. Smithton has 22 positions; Warsaw, 21; LaMonte and Sacred Heart, 13; Cole Camp, 12; Hughesville, 12; Lincoln, 10; and Green Ridge, 9.

Recent regulations adopted for secondary schools by the State Department of Education require all high schools to offer a certain number of units or credits in vocational education. Secondary schools within the college district are already taking advantage of the vocational curriculum offered by SFCC. That program will be expanded to 300 students should the bond levy pass and the new area vocational building be constructed. Such expansion would also pump more units of vocational training into the course offerings of surrounding high schools, thus helping them in meeting state requirements.

Some of the schools surrounding SFCC now have an A rating in the state's accreditation rating system of A, AA and AAA. By July 1, 1976, schools which have not raised their A standard to a AA rating will be unclassified, according to Lesley L. McDaniel, director, supervision of instruction section, State Department of Education.

Please see floorplan, Page 6.

McDaniel said when students transfer or graduate from such an unclassified school system, their credits do not have to be accepted in the case of transfer, and admission to out-of-state colleges or universities would become extremely difficult. For the student, that could mean a lot of lost time.

McDaniel said the concept of designating area vocational schools is to simplify state funding, which goes directly to such schools (in this case SFCC) and add uniformity to the quality of the program and its instruction.

"Financing such required programs on an individual district basis would be extremely expensive," McDaniel said, and area school administrators agreed.

For instance, Smithton Superintendent of Schools Wendell Ware said it would be impossible for patrons of the Smithton district to afford the kind of vocational program which SFCC is offering to satisfy state requirements.

"The big obstacle to our becoming AA is the vocational-technical program," Ware said, adding that Smithton must also spend a certain amount to enhance library facilities and gain a favorable percentage of elementary teachers with masters degrees or 30 extra hours of study to qualify.

"Right now our levy is at $3.85. We looked into the possibility of building a vocational-agriculture facility on our campus and depending on the kind of structure, it could cost anywhere from $50,000 to $100,000. That doesn't include operating expenses, either. Right now we're at bonding capacity until about 1980 since we're in the process of retiring a bond issue for a new elementary facility which opened this school year," Ware continued.

"There's no way we could meet state deadlines on our own and there's no way we could provide comparable vocational programs out here for 15 cents," he explained. "The levy's passage would be of great benefit to our district."

"We couldn't do it for $5, let alone 15 cents."

"We couldn't do it for $5, let alone 15-cents," was the comment of LaMonte Superintendent Ordell Sholl. "We have a lack of vocational subjects right now. The curriculum would be improved with the levy so that we could offer 18 units of vocational credit. We have 12 students in the program, which is about one-third of the number I'd like to see in it. If they expand we can get more of our students who earnestly want the training into the program."

Sholl indicated it could be possible for his students to get into another vocational program if the need arose, but it would require sending the students to either Warrensburg or Marshall.

Northwest Superintendent Paul McKee said his district "couldn't touch similar vocational offerings as those provided by SFCC, even for $3 or $4."

"We're depending on State Fair to provide us with the vocational requirements demanded by the state," he continued. "It will help us advance to AA status, which we are supposed to do by a certain date. The cost of vocational instruction alone to our district would be prohibitive locally," he said.

Warsaw's superintendent, John Boise, said the college program could be saving his district some money. "If we were to try to provide these courses it would be at a much higher cost to our own district," Boise said.

"We're interested in offering as varied or widespread a curriculum as possible and this bond issue would allow us to expand vocational offerings at a minimum cost. We have a definite interest in the agricultural offerings," Boise said.

Virgil Oglevie, Cole Camp superintendent, said his school might be able to attain AAA status with an affirmative vote Tuesday. "We are deficient in one class curriculum offering — vocational education," he said.

"We would have to organize about three classes by ourselves to offer AAA minimum requirements in the vocational study," Oglevie said. "We have 12 students involved next year, with others who wanted to go but couldn't fit into the present program. It would be much cheaper for us to go this route (SFCC levy) than for us to do it ourselves."

Lincoln Superintendent Duane Broderson said his district is depending greatly on the college levy passing to fulfill vocational agriculture and trades and industry offerings so the system can obtain AA status by the 1976 deadline. "There's just no way we could do it for 15-cents," Broderson said, indicating it would be difficult for Lincoln patrons to find a suitable alternative to the program offered by SFCC.

"It's necessary that people realize the difference in quality of the program being offered by SFCC and one we could offer, regardless of the difference in cost," said Leland Foster, Green Ridge superintendent. "The levy election would provide us with the necessary vo-tech program we need to reach AA much more economically than we could do it as an individual district."

"It's necessary that people realize the difference in quality of the program being offered by SFCC and one we could offer, regardless of the difference in cost."

A $100 per student maintenance fee to pay for the cost to individual districts of sending high school students to SFCC for the program is provided through government aid. Benton County schools hope to arrange some sort of "bus pool" arrangement to make sure their transportation costs are met by the maintenance fee.

Foster said Green Ridge is handicapped in being able to even present a building

Seven are indicted in Watergate conspiracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury today indicted H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, once top aides to President Nixon, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, and four other men on charges of conspiracy to obstruct Watergate investigations.

The 50-page Watergate indictment also brought charges against:

—Charles W. Colson, a former White House special counsel.

—Robert C. Mardian, once an assistant attorney general, later an aide in the 1972 Nixon campaign.

—Gordon C. Strachan, a former presidential assistant.

—Kenneth W. Parkinson, an attorney for Nixon's campaign finance committee.

A total of 24 charges were lodged against the seven men.

The cover-up indictment, stemming from alleged efforts to conceal White House and Nixon re-election campaign involvement in the June 1972 Watergate wiretapping burglary at Democratic party headquarters, came with an indication that there may be more grand jury proceedings ahead.

President Nixon said the indictment indicates that the judicial process is finally moving toward the resolution of the matter. He said he hopes the trials of those accused "will move swiftly to a just conclusion."

With the indictment, the grand jury delivered to U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica a sealed report on Watergate, and two black suitcases containing evidence in the case.

There had been reports the grand jurors might return a secret document covering findings that involve President Nixon.

Sirica said the grand jury might be called upon to return to work in two weeks.

In Los Angeles, Haldeman said he would have no comment on the indictment.

Colson said he had taken a leave of absence from his law firm and avowed his innocence.

"Like most human beings, I have made my share of mistakes but during the time I served, I have always done my duty as I saw it," Colson said. "My conscience is clear."

Parkinson issued a statement saying that he is innocent and can demonstrate it when all the circumstances are brought to light.

The distinction between charges of perjury and of making a false declaration to the grand jury is a technical one. Either charge accuses a defendant of lying.

The perjury charges returned today stem from testimony before the Senate Watergate committee. The false declaration charges, which carry heavier penalties, involve grand jury statements.

In accusing Haldeman of perjury, the grand jury said he had lied to the Senate committee in quoting Nixon as saying it would be wrong to meet demands that the original defendants in the Watergate burglary be paid $1 million for their silence.

The charges were:

—Ehrlichman—one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice, one count of lying to FBI agents and two counts of lying to the grand jury or the court;

—Haldeman, one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice and three counts of perjury;

—Mitchell, one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice, two counts of lying to a grand jury or court, one count of perjury and one count of lying to FBI agents;

Colson, Mardian and Parkinson, one count each of conspiracy to obstruct justice;

—Strachan, one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice and one count of lying to a grand jury or court.

In addition, each defendant, except Mardian, was charged with one count of obstruction of justice.

Each charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and fines ranging from $2,000 for perjury to $10,000 for lying to a grand jury or court.

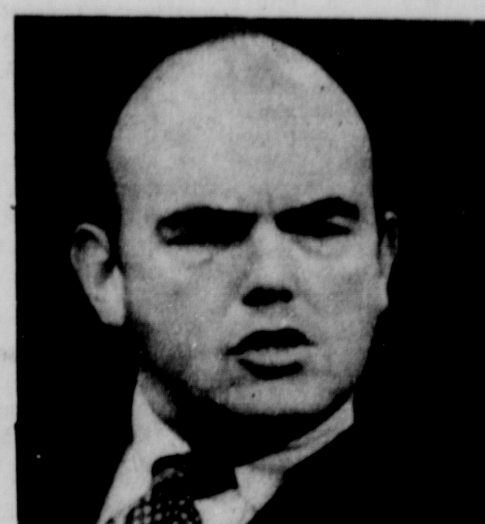

Haldeman refused to go to the door of his Los Angeles home this morning to see newsmen, and his wife told them, "Mr. Haldeman is not seeing anybody today." However, he did answer the telephone and told a newsmen, "I haven't even seen the indictment. I have no comment and will have none for the time being. When the time does come that I have something, I will let you know."

Sirica scheduled arraignments for March 9, a Saturday, when Mitchell's trial in New York on separate charges stemming from a contribution to President Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign would not be in session.

The indictment charged that the seven defendants made cash payments to the original Watergate defendants "for the purpose of concealing and causing to be concealed the identities of the persons who were responsible for, participated in,

H. R. Haldeman

John D. Ehrlichman

and had knowledge of the activities which were the subject of the investigation and trial."

The grand jury alleged that Haldeman lied to the Senate Watergate committee on July 30, 1973, when he said that President Nixon had said it would be wrong to meet demands from the Watergate defendants for $1 million.

Secretary Jones reports

Fair budget 'might be reduced'

Commenting on action by the Missouri Senate appropriations committee, which tentatively indicated Thursday that $170,000 may be slashed from the Missouri State Fair budget for the 1974-75 fiscal year, Fair Secretary Ron Jones Friday said, "It's very hard for me to speak and not be bitter about it. I'm very upset."

Jones appeared Thursday before the committee where, he said Friday, "it was strongly indicated that my budget request, as submitted, might be reduced."

Jones had asked for $1,162,000 for the coming fiscal year, which will cover the 1974 Fair.

He was particularly displeased with the committee's attitude, Jones said, "because we've already saved the state $150,000 by contract re-negotiations and other means. I guess I'm just a little naive, but I thought they would deal with things honestly and instead of recognizing good business practices they're trying to cut me back."

The reduced $992,000 figure, which the committee discussed, "would be the lowest for a Fair administration to work with since 1970," Jones said.

"And costs have risen tremendously in that time, as anyone can tell you," he continued. "As an example, we spent close to $75,000 on just plumbing and electrical work alone last year and we had two labor cost increases in a matter of months."

Jones explained that $40,000 of his original request did not reflect a real increase in operating funds because a similar amount has been withdrawn from local banks, just prior to the Fair each year, for "spending money to get the Fair started."

"All we are doing," Jones explained, "is including this $40,000 'getting started' amount in the official budget, instead of going downtown to the bank and drawing a note for that amount before the Fair opens, as it has been done in the past. This practice has been rightfully criticized by the state auditor as an unlawful obstruction of state funds."

The indictment quoted Haldeman's testimony to the committee when he was asked about a meeting in the President's office on the morning of March 21, 1973.

The indictment quoted Haldeman as telling the committee that the President asked former White House counsel John W. Dean III how much money the defendants were demanding and that Dean replied, probably a million dollars. Haldeman quoted Nixon as replying, "There is no problem in raising a million dollars. We can do that, but it would be wrong."

The next day Haldeman was asked again if he was positive that the President said it would be wrong to raise the money and he replied, "I am absolutely positive."

Laborites hold lead in British election

LONDON (AP) — Harold Wilson's Laborites held onto the lead today as counting resumed in Britain's general election, but Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservatives were closing the gap as results poured in from the rural areas.

Computer projections said the Laborites would fall short of a majority in the new House of Commons.

With 600 of the 635 Commons seats decided, the Labor party had 293, the Conservatives 285, the Liberals 10, and other parties 12. This represented gains of the 21 seats for the Laborites and 7 for the Liberals, and the loss of 38 for the Conservatives.

Wilson ruled out a coalition with the Liberals and it appeared he might become the nation's first minority prime minister since Ramsay MacDonald in 1929-31.

He could stay in office only as long as the Liberals and an assortment of nationalists, Ulster Protestants and independents did not unite with the Conservatives to vote him out and force a new election.

The computer projections of both the British Broadcasting Corp. and ITV, the commercial television network, predicted Labor would win a total of 307 seats, 11 short of a majority. The BBC predicted 300 seats for the Conservatives and the remaining 28 for the Liberals and others; ITV forecast 293 for the Conservatives, 22 for the Liberals and 13 for others.

A Conservative upsurge was expected today as returns came in from rural and suburban districts in which Heath's party is normally strong. But it appeared unlikely this would close the gap enough to send the Conservative leader back to No. 10 Downing St.

The prospect of a weak minority government amid Britain's worst economic crisis since World War II seemed to reflect the confusion of the nation over how best to tackle its industrial, trading, monetary and social problems.

Wilson has a wide-ranging series of commitments, but he likely can make good on only one of them without a majority.

Kissinger taking proposals to Syria

TEL AVIV (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today picked up Israeli disengagement proposals for the Golan Heights patterned after the successful Egyptian-Israeli troop separation in the Sinai, officials reported.

This would mean creation of a second United Nations buffer force to patrol between Israeli and Syrian soldiers somewhere in the 300 square miles of Syrian territory captured by Israel in the October war, they added.

Both sides would have to thin out their front-line troops and fire power — the limit on the Egyptian front was 30 tanks apiece — and would negotiate for possession of strategic posts on Biblical Mt. Hermon, the officials said.

Kissinger, who arrived in the Jewish state from Cairo, plans to take the Israeli proposals to Damascus tonight and present them personally to President Hafez Assad of Syria.

The Israelis have said they will return the land taken in October, but not the whole Golan Heights or the 15 Jewish frontier settlements on land captured in 1967.

Kissinger's mediation efforts are designed to soften the conflict with an interim troop separation accord that would reduce the danger of fighting during negotiations on a wider settlement, probably at Geneva.

To get talks for an interim agreement started, he persuaded the Syrians earlier this week to give Israel a list of 54 Israeli war prisoners held in Syria and to allow Red Cross visits to the POWs. Red Cross sources in Damascus said their representatives began the visits today.

After landing here, Kissinger drove in a 14-car motorcade to a tightly secure government building north of Tel Aviv, where he met with Premier Golda Meir, Deputy Premier Yigal Allon, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan to discuss the Israeli pullout plan.

Pastors side with synod in dispute

Church news

Sedalia's two Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod ministers said this week that they are in support of the synod's president and Concordia Seminary board of control in the seminary controversy.

"I would like to be open-minded," said the Rev. Erhard W. Wolf, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church. "But I would have to go with the synodical position."

"I want to look at both sides," concurred the Rev. Roger Sonnenberg, pastor of Our Savior Lutheran Church. "But I feel the majority of seminary professors and students are in the wrong."

The dispute, now in its fifth week, has caused a virtual shutdown of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, the largest Lutheran seminary in the world. Some have said that the conflict may create a distinct split in the three million member church.

The controversy centers on the Jan. 20 decision by the seminary's board of control to suspend seminary president Dr.

John Tietjen for allegedly teaching doctrine contrary to the synod's position.

On Jan. 21 the student body voted 282-92 to declare a moratorium on class attendance. The same day 42 members of the 55-member faculty and executive staff also voted to consider themselves under suspension in a move to back Tietjen. The dissenting teachers and seminarians created a "Seminary in Exile."

Synod president Dr. J. A. O. Preus appointed a 14-member committee to delineate issues in the turmoil and seek ways to deal with the issues. Recent developments in the conflict have included charges and countercharges issued by Tietjen, Preus and other participants.

Both local pastors said they agree that the dispute is basically doctrinal in nature, although they said there may be other factors.

"I would say it is a doctrinal matter on interpretation of scriptures," said Mr. Wolf. "However, I think it also has also turned into personality clashes, emotions and accusations."

Mr. Sonnenberg termed the dispute a "pure and simple doctrinal issue. There may be some politics involved, but I don't think it involves personalities."

Both men said the dispute involves the alleged teaching by professors of such non-Lutheran doctrines as errancy of the Bible and mythical interpretation of many Biblical stories.

If this is true, then what are the chances for arbitrating the dispute?

"You can't arbitrate a dispute like this," said Mr. Sonnenberg. "The key question is whether or not the professors are going to make their doctrinal position clearer and agree with the historical Lutheran position, or whether or not they're going to simply go to another church body."

"To my mind," Mr. Wolf said, "arbitration means compromise. As far as doctrine is concerned, there is no compromise possible in this issue. Either the Bible says it or it doesn't."

Is there an actual threat of schism?

"It's difficult to say," said Mr. Wolf. "A lot of things are still cloudy. I hope there will not be."

"I hope and pray there is not schism," said Mr. Sonnenberg, "but there is that possibility... If doctrine is the problem, then hardly any compromise is possible. I hope it is a personality problem. Then compromise would be possible."

Mr. Wolf said as far back as the early '60s synod leaders had expressed concern over teaching discrepancies at Concordia seminary.

"Nothing, however, was done until 1969 when the synod told Preus to take a look at the seminary and make an investigation," Mr. Wolf said. Preus' report was issued in 1971. In it, he criticized methods of interpretation that some seminary professors were teaching, Mr. Wolf added.

Mr. Sonnenberg also concurred that the problem existed before Preus took office four years ago. A 1971 graduate of the seminary, Mr. Sonnenberg said he saw examples of non-Lutheran teaching while at the seminary.

Both pastors said that the great majority of their congregations also agree with the synod's position in the controversy. And both said that they have not discussed a length the synod's problems during Sunday morning services.

"I have my job here," said Mr. Wolf, "and I don't think I should be involved in a doctrinal squabble."

Mr. Wolf said he has been sent letters by both sides in the controversy, but has only read to his congregation a letter from Preus, which was requested to be read at church services.

"I thought there was an absence of the story from the synod side," Mr. Wolf said. "I think that the views of the other side have been spelled out in press accounts."

Mr. Sonnenberg said he is only asking that his congregation remain "open-minded about this. There are too many pre-conceived notions."

The pastor of the west Sedalia church did acknowledge, however, that his congregation sent a letter to Dr. Preus last fall supporting the synod president's efforts in the teaching controversy.

Despite the adverse publicity and unknown fate of the controversy, both pastors said that some good could come out of the dispute.

"It can be healthy to a certain extent," Mr. Wolf said. "To the extent that we Christians be more doctrinally concerned... and not take the word of somebody else, but see for themselves what the Bible says."

Mr. Sonnenberg said the synod may emerge stronger after the dispute is settled. "We may be a more united body of believers and be in complete fellowship as far as belief is concerned," he said.

The Rev. Milton Elmore will speak on "The Judgment — the Christian and The Sinner At the Judgment Bar of God" at the 10:30 a.m. worship service at East Sedalia Baptist Church. Airplane trip changed life

By ETHEL WATERS

For a long time I used to worry about my weight, to the point of being bitter. I didn't think anybody else had problems — that's why it was hard for me to get close to anybody. On an airplane trip one time I did, and things changed for me.

A man got on the plane who was pretty far gone from drinking. The stewardess hesitated to let him sit beside me, but I didn't mind. I said to let the poor fellow sit right down. Finally, when he got around to talking to me, I could see he was just all to pieces.

Of course, they wouldn't give him another drink even though he wanted one, but he was in bad shape. I could tell he had a terrible problem of some kind. He looked so miserable.

"Why don't you eat something, child?" I asked him. "I don't wanna eat. I want another drink."

I said, "But drinking hasn't solved your problem, why not try some food instead?"

He looked so unhappy, so distressed, but he didn't answer. I went on. "I don't know what your problem is, but I know you can be helped. I know it."

He turned in his seat and asked, "What's your name?" "My name's Ethel Waters."

"The Ethel Waters?" "Just Ethel Waters."

After a few seconds he asked me where I was going, and I told him I was going to a Christian meeting. Then he told me his name and began to get very serious, like a troubled little boy.

Finally he said, "There's something about you reminds me of someone very close — a woman who helped raise me. You're like her."

The poor fellow, whose name I forgot, except that his nickname was Red, told me that the name of the woman who raised him was Tempy. She'd looked after him from the time he was a baby, and I reminded him of her, so he began then to tell me about his horrible burden.

He was going to bury his daughter, who had been a beautiful musician. She had called to come to a certain concert she was giving and he didn't go. Now he was heartsick. His lovely daughter had been killed in an automobile accident.

I tried to let him know that I understood and that I cared about him, but he was in no condition for a lot of talk. I then told him I wanted him to eat something and not take one more drink.

"After you've had some food to soak up that liquor, I want you to put your head on my shoulder and take a nap. That way you'll be able to face what's up ahead. When you get off this plane, whoever meets you will know you're — a man." He looked at me again and said, "Lord, that's just the way Tempy would have said it!"

Ethel Waters

I sensed that what he needed was comfort. I'd needed comfort myself for so long and never found it until I found Jesus. They brought the food; he ate it and in no time he had dropped his head on my shoulder. He slept like a baby for at least an hour and a half.

"My shoulder got a little kinked held in one position, but I wouldn't have shifted around for anything. I just sat there and said, 'Lord, let this child sleep — let him sleep.'"

As I recall, we were changing planes in Atlanta. I asked the stewardess for a cold, wet towel and then I woke him up when I saw we were almost there. He wiped his face off good, combed his hair, looked me straight in the eye and said, soberly now, "I do want to thank you."

I patted his hand. "Honey, thank the Lord. He knew what you needed right then. Now you go on and get off this plane and meet your aunt or your sister, or whoever, and don't take another drink."

"Don't waste your strength trying to thank me. You'll need it all. The Lord knew you needed some rest and He found this shoulder. You just needed a shoulder when you got on this plane. And whenever you look to Him, He's always going to let you find a shoulder when you need it. You see, son, there are more Tempys around."

As you can see, when you stop thinking about yourself — wonderful things happen. I stopped being bitter and so I could help this man, for bitter people have trouble seeing beauty.

When I'm feeling sorry for myself, I just keep reminding myself and others that Jesus is there and He's love and I have all the love I need for those around me.

Pastoral internships offered

(Democrat-Capital Service)

COLUMBIA — The Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center and the University of Missouri Medical Center are accepting applications for three advanced clinical pastoral education internships to be offered at the centers next September through May, 1975.

The internships will begin on Sept. 3 and end May 30 next year. The student will be expected to spend about 40 hours a week in program involvements: one-third in pastoral functioning, one-third in training seminars and one-third in reading, reporting and reflection, according to the Rev. John J. Gleason Jr., chaplain at the centers.

Tuition for the seminars is $150. A base stipend of $400 a month will be paid to the intern.

Ordination, current good standing with an established denomination and evidence of successful completion of the program objectives of basic C.P.E. are required for admission.

More information about the program may be obtained from Mr. Gleason by writing him at Room N121 at the medical center or calling 314-449-2511.

Faith Baptist to be scene of revival

Faith Baptist Church will be the scene of a two-night youth revival Friday and Saturday. The meetings will begin at 7 p.m. each night.

Featured speaker will be the Rev. Roscoe Brewer, youth evangelist and associate pastor of youth at the Kansas City Baptist Temple. About 700 young persons are active in programs at the Kansas City church.

Mr. Brewer is the founder of SMITE, a summer missionary program for young people. The last five summers the young persons enrolled in the program have worked with missionaries in Mexico.

The public is invited to the meetings, according to Dan Adams, youth director at the church here.

Group completes study of John

The New Life Bible Study Group recently received awards for completing a study of the book of John.

The group began among occupants of the housing development for the aged on East 24th. This is the second course the group has completed.

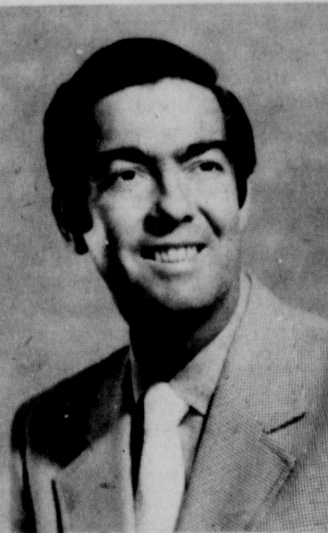

Bill Hopkins of New Hope Baptist Church is the discussion leader. The group meets Monday nights at 1367 East 24th.

'E-5' group is subject of talk

The activities of the Ecumenical Five, a Sedalia youth group, were explained by the Rev. Mark Miller, associate pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, who was the speaker at the Kiwanis meeting Thursday.

He said that E-5 began in January, 1971. Youth from Trinity Lutheran Church, Sacred Heart, Broadway Presbyterian Church, Calvary Episcopal Church, and Immanuel United Church of Christ are members of the group.

Their activities include Lenten breakfasts, a work camp in Neillsville, Wis., at a home for disturbed children, repairing and painting houses, a visit to the Indian Reservation at Cherry Creek, S. D., and similar projects.

Final plans for the annual Kiwanis Pancake Day, Saturday at the Sacred Heart Cafeteria were discussed. Jim Heley, president of Metal Processors, was the guest of Paul Edwards. Birthdays were celebrated for Ernest Clay, Victor Scott and Lynn Harrison.

Man's body found

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The body of Mark D. Edgely, 78, was found in a field about a mile from his home by a farmer Thursday.

Edgely had wandered away from his home Jan. 21 and had been the object of several widespread searches.

Mini-bike ride fatal for youth

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A teenage boy was killed Thursday night when the homemade mini-bike he was riding collided with a tractor-trailer on the near North Side here, police reported.

Raymond Lester, 15, of St. Louis was unable to stop before hitting the truck, police said, because the small motorcycle was not equipped with brakes.

The driver of the truck was not held, police said.

Fire protection plan is topic

A compromise plan under which both the city and property owners along South Highway 65 would pay for the provision of water for fire protection may evolve as a result of discussion at a special Thursday evening meeting of the City Council.

Two plans, based along similar lines, were discussed by 10 property owners and the council. Mayor Jerry Jones was at a drug seminar at Jefferson City and could not attend.

Each of the plans mentioned $375 as the figure property owners would contribute. The main difference was in when the money would be paid to the city.

The plan forwarded by Fourth Ward Councilman George Dugan would have the money paid in at the time the water main is extended. The plan forwarded by the property owners would have those owners who are willing pay $375 immediately, while the remainder would pay at whatever time they decided to hook up to city water.

The estimated cost, which would be absorbed by the city and the property owners, was listed at $20,000. The property owners would pay in $9,875 while the city would pay $10,125. The $20,000 is estimated to be enough to pay for the extension of a six-inch main to the city limits.

The water department would, as is its current policy, contribute the $16,000 to $17,000 difference needed to make the extension a 10-inch main. Herb Taylor, office manager for the department, noted that at least a 10-inch main is needed to affect insurance ratings.

The major question expressed by councilmen is whether the city can legally adopt either plan. City Counselor Robert Fritz was not asked to attend the session.

Eight of the 10 property owners at the session said they would definitely be willing to pay the $375 immediately if the

Red means right turn; after stop

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond signed into law Thursday a bill permitting right turns on red lights.

The governor said the signing was delayed to give cities time to enact ordinances prohibiting such turns. The old law prohibited right turns on red lights except where cities allowed it. Now, it will allow right turns on red lights throughout the state unless there is a sign prohibiting it.

The bill was approved in the special legislative sessions ending Feb. 1. The law went into effect when the governor signed it, meaning it affected Thursday afternoon's homebound commuter traffic.

Second Sedalia man is identified by K.C. police

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY — Two Sedalia men and a former Sedalian were among the four persons arrested Wednesday night here in connection with a raid on a house, authorities said Friday.

Police Thursday only identified one of the four. He was Richard McCue, 22, who formerly lived on South Highway 65.

The Jackson County prosecuting attorney's office Friday identified the others as William Groshans, 32, Sedalia, no local address available; John Rico, 35, Kansas City; and Ronald Lutjen, 21, Lee's Summit, formerly of Sedalia.

A U.S. marshal and a special Kansas City police squad arrested the four after they recovered in the house $11,600 worth of jewelry that was stolen Feb. 21 from a New York City jewelry store, police said.

The jewelry was marked with a tag from the Buhr Jewelry Co., police said. New York police said Buhr was robbed of about $12,000 in rings and watches.

A spokesman for the prosecuting attorney's office said Friday that McCue has been charged with carrying a concealed weapon, receiving stolen property and felonious assault on a police officer.

Lutjen and Groshans were charged with carrying a concealed weapon, and Rico was charged with receiving stolen property, the spokesman said.

All four are in the Jackson County jail. McCue's bond was set at $100,000. Bond for the others was set at $15,000.

McCue's assault charge alleges that he put a pistol to the marshal's head and threatened to shoot him when police raided the house. The marshal, who had signaled the police from inside the house, was not hurt. Police said they overpowered McCue.

McCue was sentenced to a year in the Pettis County jail Jan. 31 after he was found guilty of a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. While free on bond, he failed to attend a Feb. 14 hearing in court and had his bond forfeited.

Records show that Lutjen was convicted in Pettis County Circuit Court in March, 1972, on charges of second degree burglary and stealing. He was sentenced to two, two-year concurrent jail sentences. The charge was in connection with a break-in at the Midwest Auto warehouse in Sedalia.

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said Groshans apparently had no criminal convictions in Pettis County.

Hearings for the four have been set for next Thursday.

Senate pay raise votes postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, torn by election-year jitters over raising the pay of congressmen and other high government officials, has put off any votes until Monday.

And, under a complex agreement reached Thursday night, it may take most of next week before the Senate decides whether to kill the salary budgeted by President Nixon or to accept a compromise.

The agreement sets no time for a final vote and, because of a threatened filibuster by Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, to prevent action blocking the pay boosts, a vote was scheduled for Wednesday on cutting off debate.

The first compromise to be voted on, proposed by Sen. Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, would defer the start of the increases until Jan. 1, 1975, but would not reduce the overall amount.

Next in line for a vote is a proposal of Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., for a 5.5 per cent increase this year.

Both of those votes are set for Monday, after which the Senate is to take up a resolution to kill the pay increases.

This proposal is sponsored by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Peter Dominick, R-Colo., but the agreement sets no time for voting on it.

Under a 1967 law, the raises Nixon budgeted will go into effect automatically unless disapproved or modified by either the Senate or the House.

March 6 has been regarded as the deadline for action by Congress, but McGee, chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, said further study of the law has now led to a presumption that the deadline is March 9.

The President scaled down slightly and spread over three years an immediate 25 per cent increase recommended by a special salary commission he was required by the 1967 law to appoint.

The raises, at the rate of 7.5 per cent a year for three years, would be the first since 1969 for congressmen, federal judges and top executive officials.

Benefits

program to satisfy state requirements. "We would have to rent or build," he said. Right now Green Ridge is at bonding capacity — 10 per cent of the assessed valuation of the district, and is currently paying off a brand new gymnasium. "It would be prohibitive for us to meet even the minimum standards," he said.

Sedalia School District 200 officials also saw benefits in a successful levy vote. "Since we're sending students to Marshall and Warrensburg," said Smith-Cotton Principal Earl Finley, "it would be cheaper for us to send them to State Fair for the same offerings." Finley indicated that 18 students are currently bussed to Warrensburg and 14 to Marshall for vocation training in three-hour blocks. Smith-Cotton recently attained AAA academic status.

Sedalia Superintendent of Schools Dr. Allan C. Henningsen termed the Tuesday levy an important time for the SFCC district. "State Fair Community College is at a crossroad," he said. "College officials have progressed about as far as they can go without additional physical facilities. As State Fair Community College progresses in their ability to serve area needs for vocational and higher education, so do Benton and Pettis Counties progress. If the college cannot continue to increase their educational offerings, our youngsters will be the ones that will be hurt," Dr. Henningsen said.

"The most important aspect to remember about the program is that students are exposed to the world of work and are given preparation to help them enter it."

The concept of vocational education has received a big boost in recent years and that fact is reflected in new demands by federal and state educational agencies that vocation offerings be increased throughout the nation.

"The most important aspect to remember about the program," McDaniel stressed, is that students are exposed to the world of work and are given preparation to help them enter it."

Mrs. Nila Hibdon, dean of vocational education at SFCC, explained that with a new facility the current program at the college could be more flexible and broader in scope and services. "Under the cluster concept," she explained, "we're looking at an entire family of occupations as opposed to specific skills. This should help students in terms of entry-level skills," she said, emphasizing that the student is benefitted by demonstrating a knowledge of several job situations.

"Vocational education works hand-in-hand with career education goals," she said. After initial programs of acquainting students with careers they might consider exploring, actual training begins in the last two years of high school, she said.

Most educators hope that the world of work practicality attached to vocational programs such as that offered by SFCC will produce employees with an accurate concept of what they want to do and what skills and effort it will take to get the job done. It's the kind of practical approach many have complained was missing in so-called "irrelevant" educational programs of the past.

Thousands demonstrate in Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Thousands of anti-government demonstrators paraded through Addis Ababa today, but Ethiopia's new prime minister declared that he had the support of everyone but "some radical elements."

Prime Minister Endalkachew Makonnen, named by Emperor Haile Selassie Thursday to replace Akilu Haptewold, told newsmen he was sure he could end the four-day military mutiny and that the army would give him a chance to govern.

Hundreds of helmeted troops and police patrolled the capital but allowed the marchers down Churchill Road, the main street.

Most of the demonstrators were students. They carried signs calling for Endalkachew's ouster, freedom of the press, formation of political parties and land for the poor.

"Why don't you rise against the government? We want a democratic government," the students sang to the tune of a football marching song.

He said the troops whose mutiny for higher pay and government reform forced the previous government out would remain in the streets of Addis Ababa as long as they are needed to maintain order.

Endalkachew said the provinces were quiet and local military commanders were regaining control of their units.

He said he will pursue a program of improvement and reform and base his government on talent, youth and experience.

Endalkachew is a 47-year-old diplomat who had been minister of telecommunications. Haile Selassie fired Akilu and the rest of his cabinet after most of the country's 47,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen joined in a mutiny demanding the replacement of the government, which they said was corrupt and inefficient.

The mutineers, who throughout proclaimed their loyalty to the emperor, also demanded a 50 per cent pay increase, from $50 to $75 for the lowest ranks. But the emperor promised only $56.

The soldiers did not immediately announce their support for the new prime minister. But troops were manning roadblocks about the city and guarding banks, government offices and broadcasting installations.

Unconfirmed reports said the army rounded up some of the ousted cabinet ministers and detained them at 4th Division headquarters in Addis Ababa. Unsigned pamphlets distributed through the city called for them to be brought to trial, disclosure of their foreign bank accounts and the return of land which the pamphlets said they had taken illegally from the people.

Discontent over inflation, brought on by rising fuel costs and food shortages, has been widespread among both the military and civilians and has sharpened old resentments based on class, educational, economic and tribal differences.

Democrats may make crucial rule changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic National Committee is moving toward approval of rules that could lead in 1976 to the most wide-open presidential nominating convention in recent memory.

The crucial change, which cleared the party's executive committee by an overwhelming vote Thursday, would require a proportional representation system throughout the 1976 delegate selection process. The national committee votes on the rules today.

The proportional representational plan means that delegates will be awarded according to the strength of the various candidates, in contrast to the past when a candidate could often grab most of a delegation by getting a plurality of votes.

The proportional system, which means an end to winner-take-all primaries such as in California, could especially benefit Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who demonstrated in 1972 he had support in the North as well as the South.

Although the principle of proportional representation to the lowest level of the delegates process survived, the executive committee made one small change aimed at blocking delegates from minor candidates.

Retired school teacher has begun a second career

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — At 80 most people are well into retirement. At 80 Ress Fix is well into a second career in television commercials.

Mrs. Fix, a retired Indiana schoolteacher, moved to Hollywood in 1969 to be near her son, announcer Jay Stewart of "Let's Make a Deal."

But she couldn't stay inactive. Even after she retired in 1959 after 40 years of teaching she couldn't quit. She was a substitute teacher for 10 more years.

Once out here she enrolled in two commercials training courses. After that she got an agent and on her fifth interview was hired for a commercial.

"My first big one was for a supermarket chain," she recalled proudly. "I was the lead. I had lots of lines."

The attractive, white-haired

Mrs. Fix has been in more than a dozen television commercials and magazine advertisements since. Recently, she spent three days in Santa Rosa, Calif., filming a motorcycle commercial.

"They're bringing grandma and grandpa in more and more commercials," she said. "There's a trend more toward the family in commercials. That wasn't true a few years ago."

For Mrs. Fix it's a show business career long deferred. She said, "My senior picture at De Pauw University said, 'The stage, the stage, my kingdom for the stage.' And I never got near it for years."

After graduation in 1916 she married Julian Cleve Fix and traveled briefly in the Midwest with two male singers as Two Hits and a Miss.

In 1918 she began her long teaching career, although she continued to write and direct plays, skits, radio and television.

"I was making $22 a day as a substitute teacher in Indianapolis," said Mrs. Fix, whose husband died in 1941. "I thought I could never come out here and earn a dime. I've made more last year than I've ever made in my life. It's a dream come true. But I never thought it would come true. I'm just beginning."

Mrs. Fix said, "I never knew anything but work. My father never let us play. I don't know how to retire. The women's clubs told me I'd never be wanted or needed unless I learned to play bridge. If that's what it takes I'll never be wanted or needed."

"I love working. They scold me all the time because I go, go, go, do, do, do. But that's what keeps me healthy. I love this new career."

Kroff leading Nixon campaign

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A zealous staff working out of a crowded four-room office has waged a nearly half-million dollar publicity campaign defending President Nixon against Watergate scandals and other charges.

Seven months after its formation, the National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency has grown from 18 charter members to a network of about 200 chapters claiming more than 200,000 members.

"I truly want to see thousands, literally thousands of groups," defending the President, says Rabbi Baruch Korff, who heads the operation and who has donated his own vacation savings to form it.

Through newspaper advertisements, petitions, matchbook ads and public appearances, the rabbi and his committee are spreading their message: the news media and scheming politicians have found Nixon guilty on all charges and are dedicated to get him out of office.

By contrast, Korff describes Nixon as one of the greatest presidents in the nation's history. "What rattles the liberals and the radicals, are not his vices, but his virtues. He has accomplished everything that eluded his predecessors of the liberal vintage."

The committee's fans include the President himself and his family. After the rabbi appeared on a recent segment of NBC's "Today" show, he received a telegram from First Lady Pat Nixon and daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower saying, "... You were tremendous and have our great admiration."

Rabbi Korff says Nixon has sent him two notes of appreciation and met with him privately.

Rabbi Korff, who works without pay, presides over a staff of eight paid workers and 200 volunteers. The office's administrative assistant, Miss Elizabeth Mudge, took a leave of absence from a job in public relations to join the campaign on a volunteer basis. Like others on the committee she has contributed to the cause from her own money.

The committee reports spending nearly $450,000 in its campaign.

Altitude problems with pressure

Dear Dr. Lamb — In all my life I made three or four flights by plane, all a short distance of about 600 miles. Each time when the plane got airborne, I felt as if my ears were getting plugged, then a sort of a zoom vibrates in my head. Finally, when the flight is over, I get off the plane, and I am completely out of shape. A sort of dizziness follows me, ears still plugged and this condition lasts a week or more until I finally feel normal.

I have plans to go to the West Coast and to Europe, but, frankly, I am afraid to do it because if I feel so bad in one hour of flight, then six to 10 hours in the plane may kill me. Can you tell me what is wrong with me? Thousands of people fly around the globe, and they are okay. I am absolutely one healthy man. My heart, my lungs, my stomach are all in perfect shape. Traveling by bus, by train, or other means of transportation on the surface of the earth does not bother me.

Dear Reader — You are having trouble with changes in air pressure. Inside your ear is a closed space. It is like a hollow drum. A hollow tube connects the hollow space with the back of your throat. When you go up in the plane, the air in your hollow space expands and tends to blow out your ear drum. While you are at altitude the air pressure should gradually leak out through the tube to the back of your mouth. Then as you descend and the air pressure gets heavier closer to earth, the increased pressure outside the ear drum tends to push it into the ear.

Chewing gum, opening the mouth, yawning all help to improve the situation by causing air to move through the hollow tube connecting this space inside the ear with the back of your mouth. You can also gently blow against a closed nostril and the increased pressure will help to blow out your ear drums to normal.

Pilots often have this problem, particularly if they are flying in aircraft that is not as well pressurized as passenger airlines are. I've been with pilots in military aircraft and had to go back up to altitude to relieve their ear pain from the increased pressure during the descent.

The repeated changes in pressure against the ear drum can cause injury to the ear. We have a fancy name for it called barotrauma, meaning injury from barometric pressure. It can be readily treated by your doctor. The small hollow tube sometimes remains stuck in a closed position after flights, and the doctor has to blow pressure through your nose to get it open again.

As disagreeable as your symptoms may be, they are not dangerous. If possible, you might see an ear, nose and throat specialist. Perhaps he can check you to see if you have any mechanical reason in the ear to cause you to be more likely to have this problem. He might give you some medicine to keep your sinuses open to help some during a flight.

Incidentally, don't blow your nose forcefully if you have a cold. This may infect your ear as well.

This is a floorplan for the area vocational building, one of two buildings which would be erected as permanent facilities for State Fair Community College. According to dean of the vocational-technical school, Nila Hibdon, the building floorplan was designed by Sammons and Buller, architects, in cooperation with school officials. Agriculture related studies are shown on the left with building trades classes to be held in the center of the building. Business and secretarial science courses are shown on the right while the wing on the top would be reserved for health occupations classes.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.
(AP) — Most of Missouri's state mental hospitals came under fire Thursday from the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee for hiring unauthorized "illegitimate people."

Rep. James "Jay" Russell, D-Florissant, said he found 251 more persons in jobs than were authorized by the legislature. The result was a cut in mental health appropriations. Even so, the state mental health bill approved by his committee total-

Russell said he found 75 unauthorized employees at Malcolm Bliss State Hospital in St. Louis and 50 at the Fulton State Hospital.

However, Rep. Joe Hilt, D-Fulton, said because of high turnover of employees at state hospitals, the employment levels may no longer be excessive.

Russell said of the administrators who hired the extra personnel, "They admit to doing it."

The budget request for the Fulton hospital was cut from $12.6 million to $11 million.

The Marshall State Hospital was cut from $8.9 million to $6.6 million and the St. Louis State School for the Mentally Retarded was cut from $7.9 million to $5.5 million. The Nevada State School was cut from $9.2 million to $6.8 million.

House action on the bill is possible next week.

In other action, the committee approved an $815 million appropriations bill for state and federal money for the governor's office, the Department of Agriculture, public safety, consumer affairs, the state, High-

Comparisons between the bill for the next fiscal year and those of past years was not available because this year's bill was drawn along the lines of the new reorganization law.

The new bill, detailed along agency program lines, has drawn criticism from the governor's office as well as some members of the appropriations committee. However, Russell said some committee members voted in favor of the concept

The bill that was passed included no funds for the Missouri Information Service, which is controlled by the governor's office and puts out news.

The House killed a measure which would have required motorists to have headlights on from one-half hour after sunset to one-half hour before sunrise, on a 74-67 vote.

The bill drew opposition because of possible overzealous enforcement when it is difficult to determine the exact period in the financing procedure of the commission and raises the maximum limit on bonds outstanding for the commission from $100 million to $200 million.

A House bill to authorize state and local governments to defer employee pay so it could be applied to the purchase of life insurance and annuity plans, was also approved. The employees' permission would be required and the plan would be in addition to any existing retirement system.

The House approved a bill to Right turn on red light legal

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Unless there's a sign that says you can't you can make a right turn on red lights today in Missouri.

You've got to stop first, just like at a stop sign.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond signed into law Thursday afternoon a bill putting Missouri in line with 20 other states that allow right turns on red lights.

Under the new law, cities can post signs prohibiting such turns and many likely will enact ordinances, although the law does not require a new ordinance.

The new law reverses the situation where right turns against red lights were prohibited unless cities allowed it.

Only Kansas City and St. Louis allowed the turns in certain areas, said two of the sponsors, Reps. Raymond Quarles, D-St. Louis, and Larry Mead, R-Columbia.

Because of an emergency clause, the bill took effect when the governor signed it. It was approved in the special legislative session which ended Feb. 1.

Officers kill wanted gunman

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — "He came out with a gun to the boy's head," an FBI agent said after a man wanted in the deaths of two Chicago policemen was killed here in a volley of gunfire.

The 14-year-old hostage managed to break free and dive for cover Thursday as Jacob P. Cohen, 30, was cut down by 16 bullets.

The boy, Daniel Brady, was injured when the car he threw himself under for protection apparently lunged forward. He was reported in satisfactory condition.

Three of the 150 federal and city officers who took part in the two stages of the dramatic showdown were wounded, one seriously.

Herbert Hoxie, special agent in charge of the Milwaukee FBI office, said agents went to a North Stowell Avenue address after receiving a tip from Chicago police that Cohen was there.

Authorities said Cohen exchanged gunfire with the agents, seriously wounding FBI agent Richard Carr. Cohen was chased between homes and over fences for three blocks to the Bradford Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brady.

The authorities said that Cohen grabbed his young hostage as the youth was shoveling snow in front of the home, dragged him inside and held him hostage, along with two other Brady children and a neighbor youngster.

The children said Cohen, bleeding from a hand wound apparently suffered in the gunfight, demanded a getaway car when someone telephoned the home. The house was surrounded by officers, some of them stationed on the roofs of nearby homes.

Hoxie said he drove a car to the rear of the Brady home and Cohen emerged with Daniel.

Milwaukee police and FBI agents said they opened fire when the boy was free and Cohen returned the fire.

Police said Cohen's body was riddled with 16 bullet wounds. The nearby car was punctured by 15 bullet holes.

Hoxie was hospitalized in good condition. Police Detective William Beasley, who was shot in the leg during the shootout, was listed in excellent condition.

A warrant had been issued for Cohen in Chicago in connection with the shooting deaths of officers William Marscek and Bruce Garrison on Wednesday night.

Another provision in the bill requiring small "sub-compact" cars and motorcycles to burn lights whenever they are operated was opposed by Rep. Max Bacon, D-Springfield, who said the language could include a number of vehicles and should be more strictly defined.

The House approved a bill expanding the authority of the Missouri Housing Development Commission. It allows changes to $21,500 a year. Rep. Joseph Fendler, R-St. Louis, said he checked the St. Louis payroll records and found the recorder received a pay hike in 1972.

But Rep. John E. Scott, D-St. Louis, sponsor of the bill, said the recorder had not received a raise since 1954. Fendler renewed his objection, saying a 72 per cent pay raise was excessive. The measure was passed 91-47.

Commissioner

Richard M. Battles, 1715 South Beacon, has been named to the Missouri Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission, it was reported recently. A former local newspaperman and businessman, Battles has served as the Sedalia-Pettis County counselor on problem drinking for the past five years. He is also the author of a book, "Ring Around the Moon," an historical novel relating to the Sedalia area in the 19th century. (Democrat-Capitol Photo)

Property zoning changes approved

The City Planning and Zoning Commission approved a proposal Thursday night to rezone the United Pentecostal Church building, 1701 South Lamine, from R-1 (single family, residential) to C-0 (non-retail district).

The Rev. Donald Curtis presented the request on behalf of the church. He said construction is underway on a new church building at 2805 South Ohio and that the church membership hopes to sell the present building to Carpenter's Local 1792.

He also said he has met no opposition to the rezoning proposal from neighbors. Roy Raines, local 1792 business agent, told the commission that if the Carpenter's Local buys the building, it will be used for a meeting hall and for business offices.

The commission also approved a proposal to rezone a section of land at 19th and Engineer from R-1 (single family, residential) to R-2 (two family, residential).

Ray West, 1112 East 19th, requested that his property, located on the south side of 19th, and west of Engineer, be rezoned so he could build additional living space onto his home.

West said he plans to add at least two more bedrooms and a garage to his home and that the building eventually will house more than one family. He also said he talked to some of his neighbors about the rezoning and that, so far, no one has objected to his plans.

Both proposals approved by the commission will be recommended to the City Council for final passage.

Ann Landers

75 per cent alcohol consumed in home

Dear Ann Landers: A recent column which contained "A Recipe For Tragedy" prompts this letter. You said, "It should be framed and hung over every bar in the country."

As a bartender I agree with you in principle, but do you know that 75 per cent of all alcoholic beverages are purchased for home consumption?

That "recipe" should be framed and hung over the private bars in people's homes (or wherever the drinks are mixed). And it should be read regularly by hosts who think they are being generous when they load drinks and serve doubles, whether their guests want them or not.

I have seen hosts and hostesses pushing drinks at parties and it makes me mad. They are, of course, trying to be hospitable, but they aren't doing anybody any favors. Please print this letter in the interest of fairness. — Ed In Lansing, Michigan.

Dear Ed: Here it is, along with my thanks. And, incidentally, the author of the "recipe" surfaced in California a few weeks ago and I'm ashamed to admit I have mislaid his letter. If he will write to me again I'd like to give him the credit due him.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please tell women who admire a dress and offer a compliment to refrain from asking, "Where did you get it?" (A man would never be so tactless.)

My husband and I are not impoverished, but we enjoy browsing in Goodwill, Salvation Army and Hadassah Resale shops. I sew well and can transform a garment that costs $2 into something that looks like an expensive original.

My husband says I shouldn't be ashamed to give an honest answer, but somehow I just can't bring myself to do it. I've considered saying, "I made it myself," but altering a dress is not the same as making it, so I would be lying.

I need a smart Ann Landers response. How about it? — Crafty Gal

Dear Gal: I don't agree that you need a "smart Ann Landers response." In fact you don't need ANY response to a question you don't choose to answer. Simply say, with a smile, "I'm not telling," and change the subject.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I have been stuck so many times on phony mail-order merchandise that we've just about decided 90 per cent of the people in this country are crooks.

The last time we were suckered it was for $35 plus postage for a set of books on sex, complete with records and pictures. I want to make it clear that this was not porno, it was high class literature and art. We've given up on this one after five unanswered letters and two telegrams, but what we'd like to know is whether there's any way to check an outfit and find out if it's legit BEFORE we send our money? Thanks for any help you can give us. — Egg On Our Faces

Dear Faces: Yes. Write to the Direct Mail Advertising Association, 230 Park Avenue, New York, New York 10017. Your local Better Business Bureau may also be able to help you. If there is not a Better Business Bureau in your city, write to the Council of Better Business Bureaus, 1150 17th Street, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20036. If you get a bad report on any mail-order outfit, please do your fellow citizens a favor and report your findings to the magazine that carried the ad.

Calamity in the making

WASHINGTON — In his Monday press conference, President Nixon displayed more brave defiance, asserting anew that he will not resign and he will not cooperate with any impeachment hearing to the extent that it compromises "the presidency."

Rowan

That probably brought "hurrahs" from Republicans — except for the 187 GOP members of the House and the 14 Republican Senators who must run for reelection this year.

Many were already close to panic, having seen Democrat Richard F. VanderVeen win what was supposed to be a safe Republican House seat in Vice President Ford's former district in Grand Rapids, Mich. — with VanderVeen running almost entirely against Nixon and Watergate corruption.

Then — in that press conference — the President was asked whether he would reconsider his vow not to resign if it became clear to him that he was going to drag the Republican party to a calamitous defeat.

"No," said Mr. Nixon. "I want my party to succeed, but more important, I want the presidency to survive."

It became clear that Richard Nixon finally has rationalized it all out. The issue no longer is whether he, the man, is "a crook," to use his former words. It is "the presidency" that is under assault. Richard Nixon is not going to let the GOP go down in flames to save his own hide, but he will jettison the party to save "the presidency."

That was just one of the reasons why that press conference must have struck terror in the political hearts of Republicans running for office this year. They heard their President spreading halfhearted optimism about the energy crisis, giving us weatherman odds that there will be no need for gas rationing.

Meanwhile, he vows to veto any energy bill that rolls back oil prices. He wants to let natural gas prices go up. He admits to a "downturn in the economy now," but vows anew that he will not stand idly by and let a recession come upon us.

Almost every question in that press conference dealt with implications or outright charges of White House corruption, presidential trickery, presidential incompetence, presidential malfeasance; but an unflinching though perspiring and sometimes stammering Nixon insisted that things will get better soon and he will not be impeached.

He said it would be a mistake for Republican candidates to run away from him this fall, just as it was a mistake for Democrats to abandon Harry Truman in 1948.

But no press conference rhetoric can blind Republican candidates to some glaring facts of life: millions of Americans swear at Richard Nixon every day as the cash registers total up their food bills. People of all parties swear at Richard Nixon as they wait in line for gasoline. Taxpayers from one end of the land to another blaspheme "the President" as they borrow money to pay tax bills far in excess of what their $250,000-a-year leader has been paying. Even some of the once-faithful have bought $1,000 newspaper advertisements to express their sorrow and shame for ever having voted for Mr. Nixon.

Smart Republicans know that the mood of the nation is now much as it was in the waning months of Herbert Hoover's regime. Miserable victims of a wrecked economy named fat salt pork "Hoover's ham," and for a full generation vicious Democrats ran against Herbert Hoover and the depression they blamed on him.

The signs are everywhere that in store for the GOP this fall is a political calamity every bit as decimating as 1932. Democrats already control the House with 244 seats to 187 (and four vacancies); their margin could be stretched to ridiculous extremes this fall.

Sen. Barry Goldwater suffered a crushing defeat in 1964, but the GOP survived because Goldwater's debacle was personal — not the result of abuse or misuse of power while in the White House.

Nixon scored a smashing triumph in 1972, but the GOP will barely survive it — because the president debacle is the result of immoral abuses and stupid misuses of power while in the presidency.

The most fascinating and perhaps tragic exercise of all this fall will be watching to see who chooses to go down with Richard Nixon, — yes, down with Nixon and not "the presidency," for it is still Nixon and not the institution of the presidency that is in peril.

Primary election offering choices

Sedalia voters will be offered an unusual number of candidates in Tuesday's city primary election.

Primary elections have not exactly been noted in the past for offering citizens much of a choice, especially as far as Republicans are concerned. This year, however, things are different.

City Council candidates are so thick in the Fourth Ward that a voter needs a score card to keep them separated. Both the Democratic and Republican Parties are fielding two candidates apiece. One of the GOP candidates — in another break with tradition — is a woman.

Two Republicans will fight it out for the Third Ward nomination, a rarity in East Sedalia. And in the Second Ward there will be a Democratic contest, another untypical event.

We welcome and applaud this demonstration of political interest in the community. Certainly there are several pressing issues confronting local government, and the city could use some new blood and new ideas.

Our only complaint would be that there has been little in the way of a primary CAMPAIGN. True, we have the candidates, but what are their positions and platforms? How do they differ from their opponents on important issues? There is more to running for office than simply filing.

To better inform voters in this regard, The Democrat-Capital will publish thumbnail sketches of candidates and their positions on certain issues in Sunday's paper. Sedalians are entitled to all the information they can get on this important election.

Lastly, it would be nice to see a big turnout Tuesday. Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Running Hard to Stay in Place

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — We have uncovered evidence that unscrupulous brokers are selling oil on the black market for staggering profits. This is added to the soaring prices that the consumers must pay as they shiver in underheated homes and wait in long gas lines.

Our investigation has taken us from the backrooms of Washington to the oil-rich sheikhdoms of the Middle East. We found plenty of oil available, but the distribution has been thrown out of whack by bumbling bureaucrats and greedy middlemen.

In Saudi Arabia, we were told that the Arabs are pumping more oil than came out of the Middle East a year ago. At the American Petroleum Institute, we learned that gasoline in U.S. storage tanks exceeds the level last year at this time.

Why, then, do motorists have to line up for gas and pay exorbitant prices?

Inside sources tell us that the oilmen are keeping their storage tanks full — some say as a hedge against future shortages, others say as a holdout for higher prices.

Whatever the reason, the result is that there's less gas available at the pumps.

The federal allocation program has also been badly mismanaged. The federal energy wizards failed to determine, on a regional basis, the extent of gas scarcity and the availability of supply. They made no real attempt to monitor the flow of gas in or out of the 10 regions.

The gas was allocated, therefore, using fragmented and sometimes inaccurate information.

The Federal Energy Office also used 1972 as the base period for calculating the allocations. But the population growth and the travel patterns have changed. A large number of gas stations, particularly in low-income neighborhoods, have also closed. None of these factors were taken into account.

The fast-buck boys, meanwhile, have taken advantage of the oil panic to buy bootleg oil abroad and resell it at a premium to American wholesalers. They do business by telephone and Telex, demanding cash in the bank before they will complete a deal.

Some oil ventures operate outside the law, bribing government officials in the oil-

Merry-go-round

Black marketeering evidence is found producing countries. Most black-market oil comes from Indonesia, Libya, Nigeria, Rumania and Venezuela — less from the Persian Gulf states.

For a supertanker full of crude, a broker can clear up to $5 million above the market price. Smaller tankers yield around $1 million for the middlemen.

Black marketeers operating on the West Coast, for instance, bought oil in Rumania and refined it in Italy. They demanded up to $25 a barrel.

A large volume of black-market petroleum is processed in Italian refineries. The probable reason, say our sources is that Italy has surplus refining capacity. But this has led to whispers, which our sources cannot verify, that the Mafia has moved into oil brokerage business.

Despite plentiful petroleum, meanwhile, many Americans are forced to pay bootleg prices for their gasoline.

Footnote: An American Petroleum Institute spokesman denied that oil companies are hoarding stocks. Industry sources admitted, however, that some gasoline is held back because it is difficult to obtain.

Yet the major oil companies have refused to purchase available crude oil on the world market, claiming government regulations make it unprofitable. Our sources suggest that the oil companies also fear a flood of foreign oil would drive gasoline prices down.

The Federal Energy Office acknowledged that its information was incomplete at the time allocations were made. The agency is now trying to make adjustments. A spokesman also noted that all oil entering the United States is checked by Customs. Therefore, he claimed, all imported gas is subject to the federal allocation plan.

IMPEACHMENT POLITICS: In a recent column, we reported that Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., was directing a secret attempt to obstruct the House Judiciary Committee's inquiry into the impeachment of President Nixon. He loudly denied that he had asked GOP staff members to do any such thing.

As one of the committee's senior

Republicans, he also served on a special subcommittee which investigated whether to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas in 1970. The subcommittee found no impeachable conduct.

But Hutchinson was the lone dissenter. He objected that the report was written "without taking a word of testimony under oath." Now, he has done an about-face. He sees no need, he told us, to take the President's testimony. "It isn't necessary to compel him to be a witness," Hutchinson said, "but if he wants to testify, he should be accorded that right."

Back in 1970, Hutchinson adopted a broad view of the Douglas impeachment probe. It should "include an investigation into improper conduct," he said. This was necessary, he insisted, to determine "whether some of the justice's activities, if not impeachable, seem so improper as to merit congressional censure."

Now, Hutchinson is singing a different tune. "I will go for matters which are impeachable," he told us. When asked whether he would include improper conduct by the President, Hutchinson said he would "put this aside."

Examining the drug picture

By DOUG KNEIBERT

As you read these words, your humble servant will be attending a three-day meeting in Jefferson City entitled, the Governor's Conference on Alternatives to Drug Abuse.

I am one member of a local team put together by Mayor Jerry Jones to represent Sedalia at the conference. The team already has met a couple of times, mainly for the purpose of filling out a pre-conference questionnaire that would choke a healthy young hippo.

The conference is sponsored by the Missouri Divisions of Mental Health and Highway Safety, and the federal Drug Enforcement Administration. Teams will be examining the drug problem in depth and considering new ways of coping with it.

One of the purposes of all this activity will be to send teams back to their respective home towns to draw up drug abuse programs tailored to local needs.

The Sedalia team has found that getting reliable information on the local drug problem is a difficult task. Arrest records tell only part of the story—those who were unlucky enough to get caught.

Dr. Robert Glass, a team member, did compile some rather interesting figures that I'll share with you. He gathered data on drug abuse cases from the emergency room at Bothwell Hospital, and also polled local physicians as to their experiences in this area.

Here is a partial listing of the NUMBERS of such cases encountered in Sedalia last year, listed by the type of drug abuse involved:

Eight opiates, 13 barbiturate and other depressants, 16 amphetamine, eight cocaine, eight hallucinogen, eight volatile substances (glue, paint removers, etc.) and about 32 cases involving combinations of substances or unknown agents. Marijuana, by common consent the most common "controlled substance" in local use, is not included in the list.

Admittedly, the data is pretty raw, but it does provide some indication of what is being swallowed, shot, sniffed and smoked in Sedalia. The actual drug abuse totals are no doubt far higher, since these represent only those doctors KNEW about, for one reason or another.

Like most drug subcultures, Sedalia's remains largely hidden from view.

The Queen City of the Prairies will be featured in the July issue of Ford Times, a nationally distributed publication of the Ford Motor Co. Robert Hodesh, the magazine's editorial director, was in town last September to gather material for the article.

Larry Melton escorted Hodesh around for a day, and was sent proofs of the article this week. Naturally, the Scott Joplin Festival will figure prominently in Mr. Hodesh's efforts. There will also be some pretty water-color scenes of Sedalia, which Ford Times is noted for.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

During 1972, Texas and Hawaii had the lowest state gasoline tax at 5 cents a gallon, while Connecticut had the highest tax at 10 cents. The World Almanac says. There were 19 states with a gas tax of 7 cents per gallon; 11 states had an 8-cent tax; and eight states had a 9-cent gasoline tax. A 4-cents per gallon federal excise tax was levied on gasoline.

Opening lead—♥Q

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"Haste makes waste," does not always apply at the bridge table.

South looked over dummy quickly. He didn't like that queen of hearts lead. Obviously, dummy's king of hearts was going to be worthless to him. Still, the contract appeared to be pretty safe. Or did it?

South saw that he would have to ruff the third round of hearts. Then he could draw trumps and concede a trick to the ace of clubs. Suppose the trumps were going to break 4-1. An unpleasant thought, indeed! Could he do anything about it? He could try!

South ruffed the third heart and promptly played his 10 of clubs. West had to make a split second decision. He couldn't afford to hesitate and then duck so he ducked quickly.

Now South had one club trick in. He played dummy's three trumps; entered his hand with a diamond; drew the last trump and cashed the rest of the diamonds.

If West had gone right up with the ace of clubs he could have beaten the contract by promptly leading a fourth heart.

No matter which hand South trumped in, West would eventually collect a trump trick, provided he handled his subsequent plays perfectly.

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

Pass	5♣	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ A K 7 6 ♥ A K 7 6 ♦ 3 2 ♣ K 10 3

What do you do now?

A—Just bid five hearts. You can't take care of the first two diamond leads and it looks as if your partner can't either.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding five clubs, your partner has bid five diamonds over your four hearts. What do you do now?

Gremlins face tough task

Windsor regional resumes tonight

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Tonight's Schedule

Cole Camp (19-8) vs. Smithton (23-1), 7 p.m.
Sedalia Sacred Heart (14-11) vs. Montrose (24-0), 8:30 p.m.

WINDSOR — The remaining field of four teams in the Class-A Missouri State High School Activities Association's regional basketball tournament swing back into action here tonight. Once-beaten and top-seeded Smithton goes against fourth-seeded Cole Camp. The other semifinal pits defending regional champion Sedalia Sacred Heart, seeded sixth, against second-seeded Montrose, which is undefeated.

Smithton, 23-1, will take on the only team to solve first-year coach Steve Hunter's Tigers this year. Cole Camp, which earned a share of the Kaysinger Conference championship with a 43-40 upset win in Smithton, is 19-8 and has won five of its last six games.

Smithton is led by the inside tandem of Rusty Templemire (6-6) and Jay Teter (6-5), a inside combination that has riddled everyone but Cole Camp.

Although the Bluebirds don't match up quite as well inside, Cole Camp, will depend heavily on Harry Goosen (6-4) for rebounding strength and defending Smithton's main inside threat.

Cole Camp gets a large percentage of its scoring from 6-0 Ken Weymuth, who scored 15 in Cole Camp's conference victory over Smithton.

Templemire has been unbeatable in the two previous rounds here. Against Lowry City, he scored 28; he poured in 34 against University-High of Warrensburg in the quarterfinal round.

Sacred Heart will have to stop the powerful Montrose Bluejays if the Gremlins have any idea of moving into Saturday's championship game.

Montrose, rated by one Kansas City news service poll as the top Class-A team in the state, has skated through its 24-game schedule so far undefeated. However, a number of area observers feel the lack of strong competition during regular-season play may hinder Montrose tonight and Saturday, if the Jays get that far.

Be that as it may, Sacred Heart, which upset third-seeded LaMonte in overtime in last week's quarterfinals, will still have its hands full stopping Montrose's running game, spearheaded by Kent Schussler and Dennis Mayer, and getting through coach Gil Hanlin's tough, 2-2-1 zone press.

"We're gonna try and do what we've done the rest of the year," said Sacred Heart coach Tom Beer, who steered the Gremlins into the state Class-S quarterfinals a year ago.

"We feel like we can match them position for position... we need to board harder and break their press," he added.

On Montrose's press, Beer said, "They move on it so well that at times it looks like a man-to-man... that's going to be our toughest assignment," he concluded.

If momentum means anything, Sacred Heart is in good shape. After dipping to 1-5 early in the season, the Gremlins bounced back to finish the regular-season with a highly-respectable 12-11 mark.

"A lot of our fans thought we would be in for a bad year after losing our first six kids from last year's team," said Beer. "I've got to hand it to my players, they've scrapped for everything they've gotten."

Back to the momentum. That all started with a 53-51 win over Cole Camp. Then the Gremlins dropped two straight to St. John's and Stover. But since then they've lost only two games. Since Jan. 22, Sacred Heart has lost only twice — once to Smithton and the other to New Franklin. The Grems' record since Jan. 22 is an impressive 10-2.

Tonight's winners will square off for the regional championship Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The winner here moves on to the first round of state play Monday in Warrensburg. There the Windsor winner faces the Archie regional champion.

Men's keg tourney resumes

The singles and doubles events of this year's Men's City Bowling Tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday at Broadway Lanes.

The entry list for this year's event, which opened last weekend with the team competition, includes 152 singles, 76 doubles and 117 all-events.

Last week, Weller's Men's Wear captured the team title with a score of 2,977.

Arnie's back

Arnold Palmer is all smiles Thursday as he birdies the 10th hole during the first round of play in the Citrus Open in Orlando, Fla. Palmer ended up with a four-under-par 68 and in second place, one back of the leaders. Palmer started the day with a triple-bogey eight. (UPI)

Winds up four-under

Palmer scrambles from triple-bogey

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer had to reach back 18 years in his memory to find the spur that kept him going after a triple bogey eight on the first hole of the first round of the $150,000 Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

"I decided I was either gonna play like hell or get up and get out," said Palmer, who quickly put eight "3's" on his card, fashioned a four-under-par 68 and pulled to within one shot of the lead Thursday.

The lead was shared by Jack Ewing, who had one of the three holes-in-one recorded on the mild, cloudy day, Jerry Heard and Richard Crawford. They matched 67s, five under par on the 6,292-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course.

Palmer, a 44-year-old great who is seeking his first victory in more than a year, once was tied for the top spot before settling back into a tie with Jim Colbert, Andy North and Leonard Thompson, winner of the Jackie Gleason tournament last Sunday.

Australian Bruce Crampton had a 69 while Lee Trevino and defending champion Buddy Alin matched 71s.

Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller are not competing.

"I was upset — very much — to say the least," Palmer said when he went to the second tee three over par for the tournament.

Roadrunners meet Moberly

Shell, Busch turn back Crowder; State Fair moves into semifinals

By WARREN RIPLEY
Staff SportsWriter

KANSAS CITY — Charles Shell dropped in a shot with 12 seconds remaining Thursday night, and teammate Lewis Busch ejected the Roughriders' final shot with one second left to insure the State Fair Roadrunners a 46-45 first round victory over Crowder at the Region XVI Western Division Junior College Playoffs.

Shell's shot gave his team the lead for the first time in the contest.

State Fair trailed by as many as 13 in the first half, due mostly on the shooting of Crowder's Mark Franklin. Franklin, a 6-3 sophomore from Springfield, poured in 10 of his team-leading 17 points in the first 15 minutes of play.

The fourth-seeded Roughriders made their lead stand until Shell converted a three-point play midway through the last half, which tied the score 58-all.

The Roadrunners, who brought their season slate back up to the .500 level (16-16), were ice-cold in the opening moments of the contest. Jack Easley broke the ice for SFCC driving left-handed hook with four minutes gone in the game.

Franklin hit a bucket for Crowder and Shell answered with one to knot the score for the last time in the half.

Colles Webb, the Roadrunner's No. 2 scorer and rebounder, missed most of the game due to the flue. Webb fought off the sickness enough to pump in two key buckets and pulled down some clutch rebounds during his short stay.

The Roughriders dominated the contest through most of the first half. They socked in points with regularity, while coach Bill Barton's charges fired up defensive rebounds at their end.

Franklin pumped in a basket late in the opening half to give Crowder its biggest bulge of the night 23-10. A late SFCC surge led by Billy Townes and the defense of Busch and Shell pulled the fifth-seeded Roadrunners to within seven at the half, 25-18.

Crowder and State Fair have met five times this year with the game Thursday, with only nine combined points difference in the five contests. Crowder holds the edge in that department, but ironically, State Fair holds a 3-2 advantage in the series and that is where it counts.

The Roadrunner backcourt duo of Billy Townes and Jerry Bybee had only one turnover between them for the game. In fact, the Roadrunners turned the ball over only 10 times, compared to 14 for the Roughriders.

After Shell tied up the game at 38-all, two baskets by Geary Scott and a pair of free throws by Steve Gillens quickly reasserted the Roughriders lead at 42-38.

But the Roadrunners reciprocated with three field goals. The third by Townes tied it up at 44-all.

Crowder then changed strategy. Rather than setting up in their usual offensive set, the Roughriders elected to delay the ball. Crowder kept it up for almost two minutes until Tyler Laney drove to the hoop and in the process bowled over Townes and Busch. No foul was called. Later, Franklin took a pass from Laney and was fouled sending him to the line with 35 seconds left.

Franklin missed the first and hit the second shot, but the stage was already set up for Shell's heroics.

After Shell's clutch basket, Laney broke loose from his man and released the ball with one second left. But Laney was introduced to the leather sandwich, a la Lewis Busch for the clenchers.

Busch blocked five other shots during the contest and led the team in assists with six. Shell's 20 points and 10 rebounds gave him the night's honors in those departments for SFCC. Towns was the only other State Fair player in double figures with 12 points.

In other first-round action, first-seeded Moberly dumped St. Paul's of Concordia 89-46; Trenton, seeded second, trounced Maple Woods 103-49; and third-seeded Penn Valley eased past crosstown rival Longview 76-61.

State Fair meets Moberly tonight at 7 p.m. in semifinal action; Trenton and Penn Valley tangle at 9 p.m. for the other semifinal berth.

NEW YORK (AP) — O'Neal Tutein, a high school assistant coach for the past five years, has been named to the varsity football staff at Columbia University. Coach Bill Campbell has announced.

Tutein, the sixth assistant selected by the new coach, played his college football at Central State University in Ohio.

NEMS wins MIAA title; Hewett takes pole vault

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Northeast Missouri, led by Larry Jones, won its third straight MIAA indoor track championship Thursday with 67 1/2 points. Lincoln had 58 1/2, Central Missouri 41, Southwest Missouri 38, Southeast Missouri 34 1/2, Northwest Missouri 12 1/2, and Missouri-Rolla 5.

Central Missouri was helped to its runner-up finish by Mark Hewett's victory in the pole vault. Hewett, a former Sedalia Smith-Cotton track standout, vaulted 14-6 to win the event.

Six meet records were broken and one was tied as the Bulldogs took their 14th title in 16 years.

Jones set record of 30.7 seconds in the 300 yard run and won the 440 in 48.4.

The top individual was Chandler Williams of Lincoln, who got 16 points by tying the meet record of 6.2 in the 60-yard dash, winning the long jump and taking second place in the high hurdles.

The other meet records were: Central Missouri, two-mile relay, 7:50.2; Alfred Larry, Lincoln, 60-yard high hurdles, 7.2; Ken Norton, Southwest, two-mile run, 9:10, and Lincoln, mile relay, 3:17.4.

Fred Washington vies in Big 8 indoor meet

Fred Washington, who established a Smith-Cotton indoor record in the 60-yard high hurdles last week in the qualifications for the Big 8 Indoor Track meet, is representing the Tigers in today's meet in Kansas City.

Washington, a senior, was clocked at :08.1 in last week's qualifying meet at Wentworth Military Academy in Lexington. High school athletes who qualified last week are competing in the prep division in this weekend's meet in Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium.

Today's high hurdle trials are set for 6 p.m.; the semifinals are scheduled for 6:50 p.m. If Washington qualifies, he will move into tomorrow's finals, which will be held 7:35 p.m.

The next meet for the Tigers will be March 8, when S-C faces Lincoln and Southeast of Kansas City in a tri-meet at Wentworth.

March 9, S-C will compete in the Mules Relays, which will also be held at Lexington.

'Not overly concerned'

NFL owners may relieve Rozelle of some power

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Pete Rozelle says he won't be overly concerned if he loses a bit of his absolute authority as Commissioner of the National Football League in the upcoming players' contract talks.

Rozelle's old 10-year contract, running through 1978, was torn up by the league's 26 club owners and a new 10-year pact, good through 1982, was substituted with a salary which reportedly rose from $150,000 to $200,000 a year.

The implication was clear: the owners are very happy with their powerful commissioner and won't mind if the NFL Players Association makes note of that fact when negotiations begin March 16 in Washington.

But on Thursday, as the owners' four-day meetings ground to a halt, Rozelle was asked if the owners, after giving him the new contract and additional money, might be willing, if necessary, to deal away a bit of his power instead of their own money to the players to avoid a strike.

The players will reportedly lean heavily on the so-called

NFLPA gets schooling in collective bargaining

CHICAGO (AP) — Members of the negotiating team for the National Football League Players' Association will engage in a bit of role playing in preparation for their contract talks with NFL owners later this month.

Ed Garvey, Executive Director of the Association, said Thursday that player representatives attending a seminar here on collective bargaining techniques will assume the roles of NFL owners voicing objections to player demands when they are presented in Washington March 15.

The players' four-year contract expired Feb. 1. Garvey said in a briefing to newsmen that priority issues in the talks are salaries and the removal of Commissioner Pete Rozelle from his position as arbitrator in player-club disputes.

The player reps are taking part in instruction on labor talks, taught by a group from Cornell University. The union's full convention begins Sunday morning with about 270 NFL players expected to attend and discuss contract proposals and their priorities.

freedom issues. One is what has become known as the "Rozelle Rule," whereby a team which signs a player who has played out his option must adequately compensate the man's former team.

The players say the rule inhibits their movement. It's expected the players, many of whom feel Rozelle is too much of an "owners' man," will demand that he be replaced by an outside arbitrator in non-injury grievances.

Rozelle wouldn't say whether he believed the owners would permit the players to chip away at his power, but he insisted: "I don't have an ego thing about authority or power. I don't like the word authority. I prefer to call it responsibility. If changes are made ... I'll work within the framework. I'm only concerned about what might hurt the sport."

And a strike, he said, would definitely hurt it. Four years ago, during the last contract talks, there was a brief strike — the players called it a lock-out by the owners — which wiped out the first few weeks of training camp, although the exhibition and regular-season games weren't affected.

The major results of the meetings here were to assure New Orleans that it still has next January's Super Bowl IX, whether it's played in the hopelessly-completed Louisiana Superdome or in Tulane Stadium, and to tell Honolulu, Memphis, Seattle, Phoenix and Tampa, Fla., that they're the only remaining candidates for expansion franchises and that two or perhaps four of them might be invited into the league for the 1975 season by the end of April.

MVC showdown in Peoria

Louisville one-game up

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

After running over the St. Louis Billikens, the Louisville Cardinals are sitting in the driver's seat in the Missouri Valley Conference basketball race.

"I'm glad I'm in our shoes instead of theirs," says Louisville Coach Denny Crum, talking about Saturday's meeting with Bradley for the MVC title.

The Cardinals took a one-game lead over Bradley after beating St. Louis 95-85 Thursday night behind a powerhouse performance by Wesley Cox.

That set up a dramatic meeting between the front-runners at Peoria, Ill.

St. Louis Coach Bob Polk is picking Louisville.

"I think the Cardinals will win on Saturday and they will be a fine representative of the MVC in the NCAA playoffs," he said.

Polk is especially impressed with Cox, the Louisville freshman who killed his team with 25 points and 11 rebounds.

In another game involving basketball royalty, 12th-ranked Providence whipped Canisius 97-69. In the first round of the Southern Conference playoffs, Davidson beat The Citadel 82-69 and William & Mary tripped East Carolina 75-67 in double overtime.

Marvin Barnes, the nation's leading rebounder, hauled down 21 rebounds and scored 26 points to pace Providence over Canisius. Larry Fogle, the nation's leading scorer, couldn't start for Canisius because of an ankle injury.

Led by Greg Dunn and Larry Horowitz, Davidson broke away from The Citadel in the last seven minutes. Ron Satterthwaite and Mike Arizin combined for 14 points in the second overtime to help William & Mary knock East Carolina out of the Southern Conference playoffs.

Big John in full 'swing'

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — John Mayberry charged into the batter's box and soon lashed a ball over the trees behind right field.

"That's what I like," declared the Kansas City Royals' first baseman with a wide grin, taking his first swings in the opening of spring training at Terry Field Thursday.

Later Big John, weighing nine or 10 pounds less than his last year's playing weight, said he had enough batting for the first day. "I had four five-minute turns up there," he said. "My hands started burning."

It was Mayberry's slugging that carried the Royals in a contending position through much of last season, and he's hoping to get off to another fast start.

Another left-handed swinger, Tony Solita, ripped a couple of drives into the trees, and Manager Jack McKeon remarked, "This guy Tony might be what we're looking for. He's gonna get a long look."

McKeon intended to work his athletes 2½ hours the first day. But the weather was so fine he cut his opening speech to 10 minutes and kept the players on the run for four hours.

"Just going too good to stop," he said, sinking wearily into his office chair.

Amos Otis, Gail Hopkins and Vada Pinson were the only ones who didn't show up, and Cedric Tallis, general manager, said they had permission to report late.

Fran Healy was delayed by traffic in Tampa, but he made up for it by working late.

McBride bids for starting Cardinal role

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — "I'd like to make Rookie of the Year," said outfielder Bake McBride Thursday as he began his bid for a starting spot in the St. Louis Cardinals lineup during the initial days of the club's spring training here.

And Cardinal officials said McBride's ambition may not be unwarranted.

"I know the young talent on other clubs, and I know McBride can make a strong run for it," said Bob Kennedy, director of player personnel.

The 25-year-old outfielder was called up by the Cardinals at midseason last year, but he retains his rookie status because he totaled only 63 at-bats in 1973. He held a .302 average for the 40 games in which he played.

Bing Devine, Cardinal general manager, said McBride's presence in the lineup could be "the key to putting it together the best way in our outfield."

If he meets the test, McBride would probably play center field between veteran Lou Brock in left and newcomer Reggie Smith in right.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Bacon, a woman jockey, has set up two big triples in the first four days of the new horse racing season at Aqueduct Race Track.

She brought home Boston's Boy as a $53 long shot in the last race on opening day Monday to start a $13,613 triple payoff. On Thursday she scored with Foot Stomper at $22.60 to head a $4,731 triple payoff.

Big 8 basketball

Nebraska, Colorado could play spoiler against 'Cats, Kansas

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas State and Kansas Basketball teams view Saturday as a day they should "proceed with caution."

The two clubs, waging a bitter battle for the Big Eight Conference championship, have what their coaches, Jack Hartman of Kansas State and Ted Owens of Kansas, regard as tough assignments.

K-State meets Nebraska and hopes to make the Cornhuskers its 22nd consecutive home court victim in conference play. The Jayhawks, one-half game behind the leading Wildcats, travel to Colorado.

Kansas, 15th ranked and 10-1 in the league, plays the Buffaloes, 4-8, on regional television in the afternoon and the chance to catch up with the Wildcats for a few hours at least. K-State is 11-1.

"Colorado poses several problems for us in that they actually do not play with a center," says Owens. "Their guards may be in the middle as much as their center. This naturally makes them difficult to defend."

Owens doesn't particularly fear the fact the Jayhawks are playing on the road.

"We actually have played some of our better games this year on the road," Owens explains. "I think at home there might have been a tendency earlier to let our fans get us up and mentally prepare us to play."

"On the road, of course, we don't have this advantage, and it has just been a matter of getting ourselves ready."

The well-balanced Jayhawks get one big break in the game: Scott Wedman, Colorado's high-scoring star, is out with a sprained ankle.

Hartman notes that the Cornhuskers, 5-6, "are playing good basketball right now. As I said before the season began, Nebraska would be young and talented, and before the end of the year, they would make their presence felt in the Big Eight. And they have."

A Nebraska victory would assure the Cornhuskers of at least a tie for fourth place in the final standings.

One other game in the afternoon finds Oklahoma State at Missouri. The two clubs are tied for seventh place, each with 2-9 records, and the loser will sink all alone into the cellar.

Oklahoma and Iowa State have open dates.

Semifinalists meet in Class-AA, AAA

(Democrat-Capitol Service)

COLUMBIA — The field has been boiled down to the semifinalists here for this weekend's Class-AA and Class-AAA state basketball tournament.

In the AAA division, Bayless of St. Louis County will meet Kansas City St. Pius X in tonight's 7 p.m. semifinal game. Bayless, 20-9, moved into play here with an 81-60 rout of Potosi in Wednesday night's quarterfinals in Flat River.

St. Pius X, which moved its record to 25-5 with Wednesday's win, eliminated Moberly 66-58 in St. Joseph.

The other half of the AAA bracket is made up of Joplin Memorial (20-7) and highly-touted Owensville (28-1). Memorial breezed past Kansas City Bishop Hogan in Monday's first round of state play and then thumped Lebanon in quarterfinal play.

Owensville, favored by many to take all the AAA marbles won the Sullivan regional in convincing style, and then eliminated Wentzville and St. Louis Mercy to move into the semifinals. The Memorial-Owensville game is set for 8:40 p.m.

In Class-AA play this afternoon, surprise semifinalist Higginsville (17-12) and Nixa (28-2) met at 1:30 p.m. Lilbourn, 29-2, and Montgomery County, (23-6), faced each other at 3:10 p.m.

This afternoon's winners clash for the state AA championship at 7 p.m. Saturday night. Saturday night's final will be between the winners of tonight's games.

Consolation action Saturday begins at 9 a.m. between the AA losers. The consolation contest in AAA will be held at 5:15 p.m. Saturday.

Next week, the Class-A and Class-AAAA semifinals and finals will be held at the Hearnes Fieldhouse.

National League East preview

Cubs must build new infield

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Manager Whitey Lockman of the drastically reshuffled Chicago Cubs covers it all when he says "our infield will be one of the most interesting areas to watch develop this spring."

That infield must be rebuilt entirely around shortstop Don Kessinger, with third baseman Ron Santo and second baseman Glenn Beckert dispatched in the Cubs' big winter housecleaning and first base a carryover problem.

Gone, too, is the once high-voltage battery of big winner Ferguson Jenkins and catcher Randy Hundley.

Unhappy owner Phil Wrigley, irked over another Cub failure with a fifth-place finish in the National League East, finally backed up the truck after the 1973 season.

As a result, Wrigley Field fans won't be able to tell the players without a scorecard this season. In all, the Cubs traded away five erstwhile indispensable and got nine players in return with no fewer than six tabbed for regular service.

Lockman, starting his second full managerial season, contends the Cubs now can replace their power image with youth and speed and turn "this rebirth season into a championship year."

Flanking veteran shortstop Kessinger will be third baseman Bill Madlock, 23, and second baseman Vic Harris, 24, both acquired from the Texas Rangers for Jenkins, a 20-game winner six straight seasons until he faltered to 14-16 last year.

The arrival of Jerry Morales, 25, in an exchange with the San Diego Padres for All-Star second baseman Beckert, presumably will spring 35-year-old Billy Williams from left field to wide-open first base.

There's even a change of first-line performers behind the plate with catcher George Mitterwald of the Minnesota Twins obtained in a swap for one-time Cub iron man Hundley.

Provided Harris, backed by supersub Paul Popovich, makes the grade at second base, the Cubs should be capable down the middle through to center field where Rick Monday will be flanked by sparkplug Jose Cardenal in right and probably the equally speedy Morales in left.

Pitching may be the Cubs' deepest problem, conceding that newcomers Madlock, Harris and Morales become established regulars.

Even though Lockman claims he has plenty of candidates for the starting rotation, the book shows only two solid firstliners — Rick Reuschel, 14-15 last season, and Burt Hooten (14-17).

Along with former ace Jenkins, the Cubs traded away their No. 1 reliever, Bob Locker, who had a 10-6 record last season and went to the Oakland A's in exchange for Horacio Pina (6-3).

According to Lockman, potential starting candidates include Bill Bonham (7-5), Ray Burris (1-1), veteran Milt Pappas (7-12), along with Steve Stone, one of four players obtained from the White Sox in Santo's self-propelled deal with the cross-town club.

Stone, who had a 6-11 White Sox record and struck out 138 in 176 innings, seems a good bet for a starting role, but it's probably wishful thinking by Lockman in tabbing two other ex-White Soxers, Ken Frailing and Jim Krummel, as front-line mound contenders.

Pappas, 34, admittedly surprised he wasn't traded away, couldn't win for losing late last season as he struggled vainly to get the one victory needed for 100 National League victories.

When, and if, Milt gets his next triumph, he'll have won 100 or more games in both major leagues, a feat thus far only achieved by Jim Bunning in modern times.

Without Locker, who appeared in 62 games and had 18 saves last season, Lockman will have bullpen troubles unless Pina and Dave LaRoche can ride to the rescue.

LaRoche, long a disappointment after his acquisition from the Minnesota Twins for Bill Hands and Joe Decker in 1972, showed signs of perking up last season. The hard-throwing lefty came up with a 4-1 record and four saves in 44 games.

After his first look at his assembled players here, Lockman chortled, "This is what's making it great this season. Their eagerness, their willingness to work, and especially the idea of competing for jobs. Competition, that's something we haven't had around here for a long time."

Gypsies now in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "We do not know why they are here," an official of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said Thursday of a group of Yugoslavian aliens. They call themselves "citizens of the world," and have arrived here from Arizona.

The group is part of about 100 taken into custody by immigration officials in Phoenix for entering the United States illegally from Mexico. A spokesman said the Gypsies paid up to $125 per person to be smuggled into the country. Immigration officials in Phoenix have released the Gypsies on their own recognition.

"We consider them to be here illegally and we hope that arrangements can be made for their removal," an Arizona immigration official said. The problem in deporting them, however, is that since they claim citizenship in no country, a country must agree to accept them, he said.

"We don't know whether any more are coming to St. Louis," an immigration officer here said. "We had heard that all were coming but some may have changed their minds."

Federal authorities said they believe the group from Arizona has some connection with a band of 26 Yugoslavian Gypsies living in nearby Washington Park, Ill., but aside from the fact that both groups are apparently from the same tribe, the exact connection between the two has not been determined.

Two invaders loot home of auto dealer

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Two men invaded the home of Edward M. Markl Sr. Thursday, tied up his 80-year-old housekeeper and carried off $3,000 worth of property, saying they wanted "to get even with Markl."

Markl, 79, automobile dealer, wasn't home. His son, Edward Jr., got an anonymous call later warning of trouble at the home in suburban Mission, Kan. Police went to the house.

Mrs. Olive Newkirk, the housekeeper, had worked off the tape on her hands, ankles and eyes.

Police said the loot included two hand guns, a television set, a watch, diamond ring and $10 cash.

Last week two new cars were stolen from the younger Markl's home.

Attorney testifies on Wounded Knee

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A government legal-aid attorney has testified in the trial of two American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders that he was threatened with death if he didn't leave the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

Gary Thomas, an attorney with the South Dakota Legal Services, said Richard Wilson, president of the Oglala Sioux Tribe at Pine Ridge, warned him to leave the reservation the day after the 71-day occupation of Wounded Knee began Feb. 27, 1973.

Asked by defense attorney Mark Lane how his services at Pine Ridge were terminated, Thomas related Wilson ordered him off, adding:

"I saw him on the 28th in front of the tribal courthouse. He said I had 10 to 12 hours to leave the reservation or I would be killed."

On trial in U.S. District Court are Dennis Banks, 41, of St. Paul, and Russell Means, 34, of Porcupine, S.D., accused of being ringleaders of the occupation. Charges include burglary, theft, assault, firearms violation and conspiracy.

Thomas testified that on the evening of Feb. 27, 1973, Means and Pedro Bissonette came to his office in Pine Ridge.

The witness said Means had consulted him as a client in November over a tribal order that Means not attend public meetings on the reservation.

Bissonette was killed last October, months after the siege of Wounded Knee ended. BIA police said it happened after a BIA officer stopped Bissonette's vehicle and he emerged from the vehicle with a rifle.

Thomas gave the jury this account of his meeting with Means and Bissonette just before the occupation began:

Either Means or Bissonette said, "We have to get something out of your trunk (of your car)." The three went to Thomas' car parked outside, he opened the trunk lid and there was a rifle in there he hadn't seen before.

"Either Mr. Bissonette or Mr. Means got it out of the trunk," he added, and the pair drove off in an old Cadillac.

Shortly afterward Thomas drove to Wounded Knee.

Thomas said he heard gunshots and saw the bustle as cars shuttled between the Trading Post and Sacred Heart Catholic Church, which served militants as a mess hall.

"A lot of people were running all over the place. After I was there 10 to 15 minutes, gunfire broke out from the Trading Post area," he testified.

On hiking to the church, Thomas said he saw Means at the rear door, asked to go in and was permitted. He saw 12 to 15 shoulder-type firearms carried by persons inside, said Thomas. Some wore Indian headaddresses and some had arrows.

Post F TPA will hold its February meeting at 7:30 P. M. on Monday, Mar. 4 at the Ramada Inn. All members welcome to attend.

Plymouth's little cars sizzle despite car market doldrums

By PAUL GAINOR
News Business Writer

While many auto company divisions are struggling mightily with the public's new energy-minded preference for small cars, Chrysler-Plymouth Div. of Chrysler Corp. is enjoying some unusual successes.

The division set a record and topped the million mark last year with 1,000,042 units sold and the compact Valiant scored a 30 percent sales increase in the last 10 days of January.

Even the luxury Imperial, which has long held the bottom position in its field behind Cadillac and Lincoln, showed a 20 percent sales increase in the final 10 days of January after dropping about a 20 percent for the fourth quarter of 1973. Imperial was slightly ahead for January, a month when most luxury sales figures were slipping.

Intermediate Satellite sales were up 2 percent for the period.

However, slippage in sales of Chrysler and Plymouth Fury models threw the division's January totals off the year-ago pace by nine percent. Total January sales were 29,761.

BELLWETHER OF THE division's sales has been the conservatively styled Valiant, which has undergone relatively minor styling changes in recent years compared to its competitors.

In the Oct. 1-Feb. 10 sales period, Valiant accounted for 42 percent of the division's sales, compared to 29 percent for the corresponding period a year earlier.

Spurred by the sporty Duster compact, Valiant has become the largest selling compact car, Chrysler officials say.

"January is not a particularly good month for our industry," said Francis G. Hazelroth, divisional sales manager, "but we see some good indications. Used car values seem to have stabilized, and we note gathering strength in the luxury segment.

"Compacts continue as the strongest force among small cars and we're delighted that Valiant is number one in this segment."

Valiant sales for January were up 23 percent over January, 1973, he said, and 30 percent ahead for the final 10-day period. January Valiant sales were 26,926.

Duster, the sporty Valiant model on a slightly shorter wheelbase than the division's compacts carrying the Valiant name, accounted for 67 percent of sales in the Valiant line in the last quarter of 1973. The four-door Valiant, which accounted for 19 percent of Valiant sales in that period, was up 36 percent in sales in the Oct. 1-Feb. 10 period, and showed a 57 percent sales increase in January, Hazelroth said.

Favorite knives suffer the splits

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with stores that supply customers with thin flimsy paper bags that split and tear so easily. Only by skillful maneuvering can articles be kept from falling through on the street. Even if heavier bags cost a penny or two more the extra cost to the customer would save a lot of trouble and embarrassment. — ELVIRA.

DEAR ELVIRA — I, too, find this most annoying and do not hesitate about asking that my bag be put inside another one for double thickness. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Pat might try cleaning the wooden insides of her daughter's sandals (clogs) as I did a discolored wooden salad bowl. Using a bit of "elbow grease" I rubbed the bowl well with baking soda on a moistened pad of folded paper towel. This was rinsed off with lukewarm water and the bowl looked like new. (Polly's note: Do not get the shoes any wetter than necessary). After a thorough drying (not in the sun nor near the heat) the wooden insoles could be waved with paste wax to prevent soiling so soon again. — AUNT MARY.

DEAR POLLY — I want to pass on to other mothers a Pointer that has been most helpful to me. I always spread an old shower curtain across the car seat while hauling children when it is raining. This protects the car upholstery from dripping raincoats and is also good to use as a protection from spills when eating at a drive-in. — VERA.

DEAR POLLY — As to Brenda's question about dust getting on her wet oil paintings I have taught oil painting for 10 years and have never heard of this problem before. Most painters use a drier and a painting done in this manner will dry overnight or before dust has an opportunity to collect. Too much drier can cause a painting to crack prematurely so get detailed instructions on how to use it. Oil paintings continue to dry over a period of months and need to breathe so should never be varnished with hard resin varnishes. Use a soft resin varnish until they are a year old. — MARIA.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I would appreciate it if someone would tell me how and with what I can repair four antique ivory knife handles. They have split in two and separated from the blades. We prefer using these knives for cutting steak and other slicing to any present day cutlery. They started to separate about six months ago after years of constant use. We have tried all sorts of adhesives but with no luck. — W.B.D.

Old Timers night at the Grand Ole Opry

By SYLVIA RECTOR
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Some oldtimers, legends now, came back last Saturday night to savor for a few, too-brief minutes the music of applause and the ardor of autograph hounds.

For the last time, they stood on the stage where fate conspired with fiddles to make the Grand Ole Opry a legend.

It was billed simply as Old Timers Night at the Grand Ole Opry; there was no mention of the Ryman Auditorium's demise.

But it's doubtful if even one member of the cast or the audience left without reflecting on the impending move to that hillybilly Disney World called "Opryland, U.S.A."

Up on the stage, history was reliving itself.

"Fiddlin'" Sid Harkreader, hook-nosed and white-haired, drew out his bow and sawed out the Mockinbird Breakdown, bending from the waist and grinning from ear to ear. He didn't have as many teeth as he once did but, at 76 years old, he could slap a foot on the floor and hit the ceiling with a high note.

The audience went wild. But when DeFord Bailey walked across the stage, the usually noisy crowd grew nearly reverent.

At 74, the tiny black man still holds his 4-foot-6 frame proudly erect. His hair has greyed, but he still grins, and, Lord, he still plays a harmonica.

The music was first soft, nearly indistinguishable, but it swelled into a fox chase, the kind you could hear on a frosty mountain night. The dogs were running, panting, baying and, in the background, the hunters were whooping through the trees at those blue-tick hounds. But it all came out of the harmonica.

Back in 1925, when DeFord was playing some of that same music, he had to stand on a wooden crate to reach the microphone. Last Saturday night, although it was a date to honor the old timers, they forgot his crate.

And there were others. Louis Crook of the Crook Brothers band was there. Bert Hutcherson of the Gully Jumpers showed up. And so did Alcyone Bate Beasley, the daughter of Dr. Humphrey Bate who headed the first real band to play with the infant Grand Ole Opry.

"My daddy's band didn't really have a name, but the judge George D. Hay started calling them Dr. Humphrey Bate and His Augmented String Band. I was just 13 then, playing the piano on the Opry. I remember coming home with him that night he said to me, 'Bug-ger, we might have really started something.'"

If Dr. Bate believed that, he was evidently one of the few.

Looking at the big canvas backdrop lower for the second show, Hutcherson shook his head. "I don't know if it'll be the same at the new place. I just hope they keep it homey for the folks."

The Opry management and some of the stars are touchy about any insinuations that things won't be the same. Most of the stars will tell you they're glad to be getting out of the old wooden building with its drafts and its lack of air-conditioning. The neighborhood, as one security guard described it, is "a wino's haven."

But Jean Sheppard, a regular at the Ryman since 1955, says she'll miss the old stage. "This is where it happened. When I was a little girl growing up in a sharecropper's shack in Oklahoma, I used to listen to the Opry. They always said it came from the Ryman Auditorium, and I thought it would be so great to be on this stage. It just breaks my heart to hink about leaving this old building."

"I never noticed whether it was hot or cold in here. I was always just thrilled to walk out on that stage, and still am."

Accidents claim lives of three

Three persons were killed in Missouri traffic accidents Thursday night and early Friday.

Donald Lamb, 36, Berger, Mo., was killed when his car left Highway 100 in Franklin County and struck an embankment. The accident occurred about 12:30 this morning near New Haven, Mo.

Jacklynn McIntyre, 24, St. Louis, was killed late Thursday night when her car collided with a second vehicle on U.S. 66 near Allentown, in St. Louis County. The driver of the second vehicle was identified as Glenn Kidd, 20, Eureka, Mo.

David Newcom, 30, Cascade, Mo., was killed Thursday night when his pickup truck left Wayne County Route M about five miles south of Cascade. The truck overturned several times and Newcom was thrown from the vehicle.

Food prices 'higher than ever'

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

One year after rumblings of consumer discontent which prompted boycotts and demonstrations over rising food costs, the family grocery bill is higher than ever. An Associated Press marketbasket survey shows the tab is 16 per cent above last March's level.

"Shopping is a real problem," complained a Miami, Fla., woman. "I don't buy brand names any more and only shop on sale days. I'm managing because I buy in quantity and use food helpers to extend the food."

On the other side of the counter, a Dallas, Tex., supermarket manager said wholesale prices of just about everything were rising. "Consequently," he said, "the whole grocery business is scrambling to keep up with the price changes."

The AP checked the prices of 15 food and nonfood items in 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked at the beginning of each succeeding month.

The AP found that the marketbasket total was higher this March than last March in every city checked, rising an average of 16 per cent. Seventy-six per cent of the total number of items on the check list were up over the 12-month period.

The latest round of increases was led by a jump in sugar prices — a boost that will be reflected later in everything from bakery products to soft drinks to processed meats.

During February, sugar went up in every one of the 13 cities, rising an average 14 per cent. Over the year, sugar went up an average of 36 per cent and in some cities, the same five-pound sack of granulated sugar that cost about 70 cents last March was selling for $1 or more this year.

Eggs — which soared to record levels last year, then seasawed for a while — declined in every city, but the decreases did not offset the higher sugar prices.

The AP marketbasket total went up during February in nine of 13 cities checked, rising an average of 3 per cent. It was down in four cities — decreasing a little less than 2 per cent.

In addition, 33.8 per cent of the total number of items checked went up in price during the one-month period. Nineteen per cent went down in price, 39.5 per cent were unchanged and 7.7 per cent were unavailable on one of the check dates.

At home, beef prices continued to rise in many areas, although special sales brought the price down in some cities. The price of chopped chuck, however, was higher this March than last in 11 cities; all-beef franks were more expensive in 10 cities.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has predicted that food prices over-all may rise as much as 16 per cent this year. Last year, the government said, food prices generally rose about 20 per cent.

The cities in the AP survey are: Albuquerque, Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

The items covered in the survey are: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice, coffee, paper towels, eggs, butter, detergent, fabric softener, peanut butter, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef franks and granulated sugar.

SFCC bond issue—Part I

Facilities would aid area Vo-tech

By BOB SHEUE
Special to The Democrat-Capital

Officials at State Fair Community College are hoping that the third time is a charm.

Next Tuesday patrons of the two-county district will be asked to vote a levy increase which will allow the junior college to undertake a building program to establish a $6.2 million permanent campus, just west of the existing interim facilities.

Twice before district voters rejected a permanent building proposal. In October and December of 1969 Sedalia voters provided the necessary two-thirds positive response, but rural Pettis County and Benton County soundly defeated both issues.

This time, because of new State Department of Education classification requirements, high school districts surrounding the junior college have much more to gain — or lose — under the current building proposal. Of two buildings to be constructed, one would house an area vocational program for secondary and post secondary students. It would be under this program that area high school students could acquire the necessary vocational credits which will be required by state officials.

For nearly six years, the college has attempted to provide the necessary services required of an area vocational school, as well as offering a two-year arts and science curriculum. But with the interim facilities being jammed well above suggested occupancy levels for five of those six years, college officials have felt that an expansion program is necessary.

"These buildings can't take another five or six years of usage at the present level."

When ground was broken for temporary facilities for the newly-formed junior college six years ago, a dream of providing post-secondary education to the immediate area was realized.

The idea of providing accessible, affordable higher education was not a new one. It was a goal visualized by many civic-minded individuals for several years prior to that 1968 beginning. It was a goal which gained a foothold on reality with the passage of statewide junior college-aiding legislation in 1961. And that goal was pushed closer to reality five years later when petitions circulated and collected by the Jaycees asking to hold an election to form a junior college district were approved by the State Department of Education.

A favorable response in that April, 1966, election moved the dream into the working stages. At first the newly-elected six-member board of trustees, chosen from 17 candidates, and newly-selected President Fred E. Davis, studied several possibilities of using existing buildings to house interim facilities for State Fair Community College.

The idea of refurbishing old Broadway School at Broadway and Kentucky proved to be too costly for the benefits derived. Other buildings were not large enough for the activities planned, except for some buildings on the state Fairgrounds which lacked certain necessary utilities to provide adequate year-round use for planned junior college activities.

Shortly after the school received State Department of Education designation in May, 1968, as a vocational and technical school offering the usual academic transfer and adult education programs, the board of trustees voted to take measures to purchase a 15-acre tract for a campus site from Henry Lamm Jr., with a five-year option to buy an adjacent 125 acres for permanent facilities later.

"We're squeezed as tight as we can be squeezed right now."

After realizing that existing structures did not provide a reasonable home for the new junior college, school officials took bids in late May of 1968 for construction of temporary facilities. Crestview Homes, Inc., a subsidiary of Home Building Corp. of Sedalia received a contract to construct the six original buildings for $240,000.

Finishing touches on that construction were still in progress when the school greeted its first students Sept. 16, 1968.

Six years and 7,000 students later, SFCC is now asking patrons of the two-county district to go to the polls and approve a $5.5 million bond issue to construct permanent buildings. Total cost of the project is expected to be $6.2 million, a figure which would be realized through $700,000 in state and federal matching funds, should the bond issue pass. An estimated levy increase of 15 cents, which will be explained in detail in the third part of this series in Sunday's edition, is required to help retire the cost of the bonds. The 15-cent figure, considered low for a project of this scope, has been made possible through a bequest of $2.3 million from the Charles Yeater estate.

The current six-year-old facility is starting to show the strains of overuse. From 485 students in that first September, enrollment has grown through the years and Davis says frankly, "these buildings can't take another five or six years of usage at the present level." The present student population is 1,510 students, including vocational, continuing education and adult programs. The building was designed to comfortably handle 400.

There are two aspects to the building program. The first is an integrated building that contains a library and media support area, 11 classrooms, fine arts instructional facilities and a multi-use auditorium. A two story structure, it would allow the junior college to offer expanded library services, a studio to generate possible televised credited instruction over a cablevision system, more accessible laboratory facilities and adequate meeting space for students and faculty groups.

Working closely with architects Sammons and Buller, school officials offered many suggestions as to how floor plans could be arranged from the most functional standpoint. This is especially evident in the second major part of the construction program, the area vocational building, which can provide programs required by the state for about 300 area high school youths, as well as 16 vocational programs at the college level.

School officials hope to lose the school's present "Plywood U" label.

Dean of Vocational Education Mrs. Nila Hibdon, explained that the new area vocational building will be arranged so that agriculture related facilities will be in one area, secretarial science classes in another, building trades in yet another section and a health occupations wing in a fourth major area in the vocational building.

Mrs. Hibdon explained that 52 per cent of SFCC's full-time equivalent students are involved in the school's vocation program, which last year was singled out at the Missouri Vocational Association's annual July meeting as the outstanding vocational program in the state. One reason for this recognition, Mrs. Hibdon believes, is the junior college's excellent record in placing post-secondary vocational program graduates. The MVA is made up of all schools offering secondary, post-secondary and adult vocational education programs in Missouri.

Mrs. Hibdon said SFCC was the only junior college campus in Missouri where permanent vocational facilities had either not been built or were being built.

"Even if this present building is vacated," she said, speculating on issue passage, "we still can't fit the vocational program we have planned into it." In fact, the college will have to rent space to provide all the vocational offerings desired this fall. Health occupations and agriculture programs will have to be held in rented space off campus, as well as building trades classes. Auto mechanics, electronics, welding and business and office courses will be offered on the campus.

Mrs. Hibdon revealed that the school is seeking rental arrangements as close to the campus as possible for off-campus instruction, hopefully somewhere on the Fairgrounds. But rental payments will have to come from operating expenses. The new building would do away with the necessity of having to rent space.

Increased services offered by the college have cut into space originally designed for other purposes. "For instance," Davis said, "our library has been reduced by about one-third due to counseling and other services we have felt were necessary for the students' sake."

The present facilities would be used for administrative offices, badly-needed,

Tense British election

Last-minute campaigning

British Prime Minister Edward Heath got in some hurried campaigning at a gathering today before a general election began. Heath, the nation's Conservative party leader, called the election after coal miners turned down his last offer to settle a nationwide strike. Early returns showed a Labor party gain in the House of Commons.

(UPI)

LONDON (AP) — Early results in the British general election Thursday showed a surge in voting for the middle-road Liberal party. The British Broadcasting Corp. predicted the Liberals could win enough seats to hold the balance of power between the Conservative and Labor parties.

However, the British Press Association and the independent television network predicted on the basis of the first returns that the Labor party would wind up with the largest number of seats in Commons.

After the first two results, the BBC, working on a computer analysis, predicted the Liberals would finish with between 20 and 50 seats in the 635-seat House of Commons.

Britons turned out to vote in heavy numbers despite snow, rain, sleet, raw winds and some sunshine in the nation's first election held in a state of emergency. A surge of terrorist bombings marked the balloting in Northern Ireland.

Counting began after the shutdown of polling stations across the nation after 15 hours of voting.

In Northern Ireland, which has 12 House of Commons seats allocated to its 1.5 million people, 12 bombs burst in two hours. One man was reported killed and a woman lost her legs in Belfast, the capital. Earlier, bombs hit in Londonderry and other centers.

About 40 million people in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland were eligible to cast ballots.

The highest percentage of voters in any national election here was in 1950 when 84 per cent of the 34,412,000 eligible voters turned out. Britain's population has increased steadily since then.

Election observers said voters seemed sharply aware the ballot was a momentous one and that no matter what the outcome Britain's living style and standards would be transformed.

The state of emergency was called by Prime Minister Edward Heath after a deadlock with the nation's coal miners in a pay dispute that brought on a power crisis.

The latest upsurge of violence in the province of Ulster, as Northern Ireland is officially known, appeared to have an electoral significance on top of the rivalry between the Protestant majority and Roman Catholic minority there.

Gunmen opened fire on soldiers guarding a voting station in Belfast. No one was hurt. Earlier, terrorist bombs had been set off in two Londonderry stores and a landmine was defused near the home of Housing Minister Justin Currie.

In Londonderry and Belfast, rioting crowds and troops clashed in Catholic areas. On both sides of the sectarian divide, militant leaders were telling their followers to boycott the national ballot.

The election was called ahead of time by Heath, the Conservative party leader seeking re-election after the coal miners turned down his last offer to settle a crippling nationwide strike.

The country has been on a three-day work week since late December in a government campaign to conserve energy.

A big turnout traditionally favors the Labor vote in Britain, but as the voting went on neither Heath's Conservatives nor Harold Wilson's Laborites could be certain of the outcome.

Only Jeremy Thorpe's Liberal party professed total confidence that its hour had come. Any big increase in Liberal seats in the House of Commons would transform Britain's traditional two-party system.

The old 630-seat Parliament had 322 Conservatives, 287 Laborites and 11 Liberals. Eight seats were held by smaller parties, one was vacant and one went to the voteless speaker.

The new Parliament, with many redrawn districts, will have 635 seats.

Heath, Wilson and Thorpe all cast their votes soon after the polling stations opened. Heath, huddled in a greatcoat, voted in the City of London division. So did Wilson with his wife Mary. Thorpe strolled to the polling booth through a snowfall in north Devon.

Most public opinion polls, operated mainly for pro-Conservative newspapers, made Heath the frontrunner, but in some cases by no more than a whisker. All agreed the Liberal challenge was strong. None could be sure whom this would hurt more, Heath or Wilson.

Heath has been prime minister since June 18, 1970, when he came from behind to upset Wilson in an election that contradicted the predictions of most pollsters and pundits.

The Tory-dominated Parliament was elected for a five-year term. But a prime minister has the right to seek a popular vote of confidence anytime he chooses and usually does so when he thinks the tide is running for him.

All three parties have warned that the voters must expect hard austerity to meet the nation's difficulties. Inflation was one of the key issues, with food prices up 53 per cent since Heath took office. And Britain's overseas trade was in the red at the record annual rate of $10 billion.

Mitchell-Stans jury chosen

NEW YORK (AP) — A jury of eight men and four women was chosen Thursday to try former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and onetime Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans on charges of criminal conspiracy. With six alternates, the panel immediately was sequestered.

Mitchell and Stans went to trial Feb. 19, accused of trying to impede a federal securities investigation of fugitive financier Robert Vesco's operations, in return for the latter's secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

It was 1:30 p.m. when the jury gained approval of prosecution and defense. U.S.

District Court Judge Lee P. Gagliardi called a brief recess and then turned to the task of selecting six alternates. It took only half an hour to agree to five men and one woman alternate.

The jury is on the young side, with only one of its members having reached retirement age. Its foreman is Sybil Kucharski, a young, single, brown-haired bank teller from Westchester County who wears large, tinted glasses.

Three marshals were sworn in by Gagliardi to take the jurors and alternates to their homes to pick up clothing and other necessities. Then the judge ordered them taken to a Manhattan hotel for the first of many nights of sequestration.

The trial is expected to last four to five weeks. Throughout that period, the 18 men and women will eat together and live together under almost constant scrutiny of the marshals. What they talk about, what they read, the television they watch and the radio programs they listen to all will be monitored.

During the final two-hour and 15-minute process that led to the selection of the jury, Mitchell and Stans took part in five different caucuses with their attorneys in quarters behind the front of the courtroom.

increase, Wallace's prices will be 46.6 on regular and 52.6 on premium.

Verl Schnepf, owner of Verl's Standard, reported that he expected to get a notice from his supplier Thursday authorizing another price increase, "but the envelope didn't show up in the mail."

However, Schnepf indicated, "I'm kind of expecting that I'll get notice soon. I won't know how much it will be, but I'm fairly sure I'll get the word soon." Schnepf's current fuel prices are 47.9 for regular and 51.9 for premium.

Leonard Roe, owner of Leonard's 66 station reported that he has not yet received any word of a price increase from his supplier. His current price per gallon is 49.9 for regular and 53.9 for premium. Sam Witt Sr., operator of Owen's Conoco Service, and Salty Schumaker, owner of Salty's DX, both said they have not received any authorization from their dealers for price hikes.

Witt's fuel prices are 49.9 for regular and 53.9 for premium, while Schumaker charges 48.9 for regular and 52.9 for ethyl.

Local gas prices raise today

Gas prices have taken another jump at many service stations in the city. The Democrat-Capital learned Thursday.

Hardest hit, among station owners interviewed, was Bob Lindsey, owner of the Clark Super 100 station, who said he was "forced" to raise his gas prices 8 cents a gallon on both premium and ethyl. The increase, which takes effect Friday, will raise his price for self-service regular gas to 54.6 cents per gallon and for self-service premium gas to 56.6.

"I haven't got any say at all about it,"

Lindsey said. "I've just got to do what they tell me to on this. It sure wasn't a personal decision on my own."

Another significant increase, of seven cents per gallon, will take effect Friday at Chamberlin Champlin Service, manager George Chamberlin reported.

"The beginning price increase authorized by Champlin was a nickel, but we were allowed to increase ours two cents because we are now getting only 70 per cent of what we got last year at this time," he said.

With the latest price increase, Chamberlin's prices will increase to 56.8 for regular and 60.8 for premium, he said.

Toby Wallace, manager of Wallace's Skelly Service, indicated he will increase his price per gallon by two cents on regular and premium gas Friday, but not at his supplier's demand.

"I got the word from the Internal Revenue Service that I could do this. They said it was okay, and so I'm going to go ahead and do it." With the two-cent

Oil deals: every man for himself

One good thing can be said for the latest Mideast war and the subsequent Arab oil embargo: We as a nation have been disabused of a number of illusions or misconceptions, some of them rather dangerous.

Take the so-called Atlantic alliance. Had it not been for the war and the embargo, we would never have known that it is not worth the paper it is written on. The illusion that it was could have proved mighty embarrassing in the event of a showdown with the Soviet Union in Europe.

Our allies first denied landing rights to our supply planes bound for Israel, then fell all over each other in the scramble to secure special oil deals with the Arabs.

The United States, to be sure, still exercises enough leadership that it could call a conference of 13 oil-consuming nations. But the foreign ministers gave the impression of coming to Washington only reluctantly while signalling frantically behind their backs to the Arabs not to pay any attention to anything that was said at the conference.

As for the Soviet Union, it has demonstrated that "detente" has about as much real existence as NATO. Only by forbidding Israel victory in October and declaring a worldwide military alert were we able to prevent Russia from intervening directly in the war in a way that could have had frightful consequences.

Or take King Faisal of Saudi Arabia. ("Please," as a certain comedian might say.) Faisal, we're told, is at heart basically pro-American. Only he can't show it for fear of compromising his position of leadership among the Arab states.

Thus at the height of the crisis, Faisal called in American oil company executives and forbade them to supply the U.S. Navy with any oil from his sandpile. It was later revealed that the oil companies had been given multi-million-dollar tax incentives in the 1950s to ensure that in an emergency, the United States would have a source of "friendly" Mideast oil.

It's nice to know that in the crunch, one can count on one's allies and friends—to look out for themselves. (NEA)

A conservative view

New view of tape erasure

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — On the morning of Jan. 15, the six experts trooped into Judge John Sirica's court and delivered themselves of their damning, unanimous verdict: The presidential tape of June 20, 1972, one of the most critical of all the tapes, could not have been erased accidentally; the tape, they said, was erased by hand.

Kilpatrick

Since the nightmare of Watergate began some 19 months earlier, I had been doing my best to defend the President, to give the poor devil the benefit of every doubt, and to suggest explanations for the inexplicable. But the experts' testimony was the last straw, or in another novel phrase, the end of the rope. With this evidence, I took my accumulated leave and left the ship.

I am still on leave. But because of the importance attached in January to the experts' testimony, it is only fair to call attention to a startling article in Science magazine in which another expert, Allan D. Bell, advances an alternative. It is possible, in his view, that the famous 18½-minute erasure was caused by a mechanical defect in the recording machine used by the President's secretary, Rose Mary Woods.

Bell is president of Dektor Counterintelligence and Security Inc. It is a fair assumption that his credentials are as impressive as those of the court-appointed experts whose testimony seemed so unshakable. He has raised what is known at law as a reasonable doubt.

Without going into the technical details, it may suffice to say that Bell and his associates at Dektor were attracted by news reports that the court-appointed experts had found a defective diode bridge in Miss Woods' machine. In order to make their tests they replaced the bridge and tightened a few screws and connections. When they had finished their repair work, the machine no longer produced the famous buzz.

Bell and his colleagues, after conducting some experiments of their own, developed a theory that the trouble might have stemmed from the machine's rectifier. Such a malfunction, they submit, could have explained the off-and-on behavior of the erase mechanism. In the fashion of experts the world over, they do not say positively that they are right and the court-appointed experts are wrong. They say only that their theory provides "an apparently equally feasible alternative."

A great many questions remain to be asked. It will be recalled that the Uher 5000 recorder was purchased about midday on Oct. 1 of last year. Miss Woods put it to work immediately. An hour or so later, she discovered her "terrible mistake." On Nov. 12, at the direction of Stephen B. Bull, the President's appointments secretary, the machine was stripped of its capacity to erase. On Nov. 14, the 18½-minute erasure was publicly reported. On Nov. 20, Secret Service technicians restored the erase capability. The machine subsequently was turned over to the court experts.

Manifestly, there has been a good deal of tinkering with the machine. The tape itself, put in the President's "sole personal custody" last July, has been through a veritable odyssey. If the erasure were the key element of an ordinary criminal trial, the evidence for the prosecution could be subjected to rough cross-examination by the defense.

But this is not an ordinary criminal trial. The 18½-minute blank is merely one incident in a chain of incidents. In despair, one keeps going back to the point of beginning, to the morning of Monday, June 19, 1972, when the dimensions of the Watergate arrests began to take shape. If only the President had acted then! If only he had raised the roof that very day! If only... if only...

Those are the saddest words, said Whittier, of tongue or pen. And never in the history of the American presidency have they been sadder than in their application to Mr. Nixon, whose second term might have been a far less turbulent time.

"HOW ABOUT A SUMMIT MEETING?"

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The lone gunman, who shot his way aboard a jet airliner last week at the Baltimore-Washington International Airport, intended to crash-dive the plane into the White House.

Samuel Joseph Byck described the plan, which he called "Operation Pandora Box," in a tape that he apparently recorded more than a month earlier. He mailed it to us a few hours before the attempted hijacking.

Firing a pistol wildly, he killed two persons before a guard's bullet, fired through the porthole of the airliner door, wounded him. Then he turned his gun on himself.

"Whoever dies in Project Pandora Box," he told us on the tape, "will be directly attributable to Watergate scandals."

The unemployed, 44-year-old Byck planned a kamikaze attack on the White House, ending in a spectacular fiery crash. He brought aboard the airliner a small, black suitcase containing a crude gasoline bomb.

"I will try to get the plane aloft and fly it towards the target area, which will be Washington, D.C., the capital of the most powerful wealthiest nation of the world," he related in a matter-of-fact voice.

"By guile, threats or trickery, I hope to force the pilot to buzz the White House — I mean, sort of dive towards the White House. When the plane is in this position, I will shoot the pilot and then in the last few minutes try to steer the plane into the target, which is the White House."

President Nixon stayed in the White House on George Washington's birthday, the day of the hijacking attempt. The previous weekend, an Army helicopter maintenance man stole an Army chopper and after a wild, two-hour joy ride, headed straight for the White House. The guards had nothing but shotguns to stop the chopper as it bore down on them and skidded safely to a stop on the White House lawn.

Weeks before the helicopter episode, Byck planned his bizarre suicide attack upon the White House. Alone in his room in northeast Philadelphia, he began recording his scheme on Jan. 14 and concluded the hour-long tape on Jan. 23.

"I don't know what you can do with it," he recorded, "but it'll be a tape and there won't be any 18-minute inoperative beeps."

We played excerpts for his former wife, who divorced him last September. "That's him," she said. "That's the way he talks whether he was going to do this (hijack attempt) or going to a baseball game." Others who knew Byck also agreed it was his voice.

He declared on the tape that the suicide mission would be "a very difficult task for me for the simple reason that I have an abnormal fear of death... because I believe in no God, no Supreme Being, no religion, no nothing... I don't look forward to dying. I love life. I'm heavy. I'm fat. I like to eat and I'm not suicidal."

"But I'm doing this," he said, "to prove the point that one man can make a difference if his mind and his willpower is strong enough..."

Merry-go-round

Gunman had planned White House crash

He said he was 60 to 70 pounds overweight, with a bad back. "And I'm about to undertake a James Bond, 007-type operation, Operation Pandora Box, where you have to be skinny and slinky and willowy and," he chuckled, "I'm not anything like that."

"But I suspect that I can come off with an element of surprise if I can keep my cool. And I suspect that my appearance may work to my advantage."

Byck explained that he intended to combine two dramatic deeds — "that of skyjacking a commercial airliner" and "that of the kamikaze pilots."

"By combining these two ideas," he said, "I devised the diabolical Pandora Box. Once opened, the Pandora Box can never be closed. And I intend to do my damndest to open up the Pandora Box."

He insisted he was quite sane. "Those whom the gods wish to destroy," he recited, "they first make mad. That's from Euripides. And I know that I'm not mad. I'm a manic-depressive, as is eight to 10 million other fine fellow Americans. I go to a psychiatrist every four or five weeks, which I missed the last visit by the way, and I'm on lithium carbonate, which is a stabilizing drug that levels off my highs and lows."

He spoke of "wars, genocide, rape, arson," and added: "So those who claim that I'm mad, let them look very closely at themselves in the mirror; let them look very closely at what they have created."

The reason for his desperate deed, he said, was "frustration when you are suddenly aware... that this government cannot correct its mistakes, that this government is a government of cover-up rather than exposure."

"There's more crooks than good ones in Washington... They are all con artists, making deals, wheeling, dealing, money in the pocket, money under the table, anything for a buck."

Byck stressed that he was planning his dive upon the White House entirely alone and that he hoped to carry it out without hurting anyone except himself and the pilot. "I hope upon hope," he said, "that I have the courage to go through with it..."

"I also hope that... I am not taken, apprehended or overcome or wounded. I want to come out of this dead — totally dead. Win, lose or draw, I don't want to be caged up and wait for a trial."

"I want to be dead. I suspect that I will be filled full of bullets if I'm not successful and I suspect that if Pandora Box is successful, that I will die in a fiery airplane crash."

Art Buchwald

White House spy novel a wild idea

WASHINGTON — Fletch Knebel never gives up. Last week he was back in Hollywood trying to sell Magna Cum Laude Productions another movie idea.

"All right, Fletch, what is it this time?"
"I've got a crazy idea. It's a spy story."
"We can always use a spy story. What's it about, the Russians or the Chinese?"

Buchwald

"It's more complicated than that. It's about the Pentagon spying on the White House."

"Good grief, Fletch..."

"Hear me out. There's this head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, an admiral, and he's worried that the White House might do something without him knowing about it."

"Like what?"

"Make a deal with Ghana or Panama, or something. I haven't worked that out yet. So, anyway, he expresses his nervousness to two admirals who set up their own spy ring right in the White House."

"Is this a remake of 'Seven Days in May'?"

"No, this is all new stuff. The spy turns out to be a yeoman first class who has access to all the papers in the White House. Every night before he goes home he steals documents from the office of Henry Kay, the President's adviser on foreign affairs. The material is delivered to the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the morning and they know exactly what the White House is up to."

"Where the love story?"

"Henry Kay is a secret swinger, and on one of his dates in Egypt while he's sitting in front of the Pyramids with a Wave lieutenant who works for the admiral, she reveals that she knows what Henry said to Mao Tse-tung on his recent trip to Peking."

"Henry is aware that the only people who know what he said to Mao Tse-tung were Mrs. Mao Tse-tung, President Nixon and Jack Anderson. In a fury he flies back to Washington after stopping off in Israel, Jordan, Liberia, Moscow, New Delhi and South Korea. He reports to the President that the Pentagon has planted a spy in the White House."

"The President orders the Secret Service to tap the telephone of his brother, Donald. When this does not produce any information, the President orders the Plumbers to follow his son-in-law, David Eisenhower, for a month."

"When this doesn't produce any results, Henry orders a bug on the telephone of Zsa Zsa Gabor. But despite all these precautions Henry's memos keep showing up on the Joint Chiefs' desks."

"One evening Henry is at a state dinner at the White House and he notices the Joint Chiefs' admiral wearing a set of cuff links that Henry had thrown away in a burn bag the day before."

"Henry asks the admiral where he got the cuff links."

"The admiral says, 'They were given to me by a very dear golf playing friend of mine, a yeoman first class, who never forgets my birthday.'"

"Henry's no fool, and he puts two and two together. He tells the admiral, 'Your yeoman is a spy.'"

"The admiral is shocked. 'I'll have him court-martialed right away.'"

"Henry is about to concur when the Wave lieutenant puts her arms around him and says, 'If you love me you'll forget the whole thing.'"

"The movie ends with Henry and the Wave walking hand in hand on a sandy white beach in New Zealand, while the yeoman hiding behind a rock photographs the contents of Henry's briefcase."

A match-point duplicate player would probably go down at three notrump. He would look over dummy; decide that three notrump was a normal contract and take the diamond finesse in an effort to score as many overtricks as possible.

A winning rubber bridge player would make the contract. He would win the first spade and study the hand just long enough to see that if West held the king of diamonds three notrump would wheel in even though West made his king. Then he would see that trouble was in store if East held that very important card. Applying the H of the Code word ARCH he would ask himself: "How can I make this hand if East holds the king of diamonds?" Then he would see that the king just might be singleton. He would lead his 10 of diamonds at trick two and then rise with dummy's ace. Caution and percentage-play would be rewarded. The king would drop. South would run off the rest of the diamond suit and be sure of at least 10 tricks. He would probably make it 11 although perfect discarding by East and West would stop that second over-trick.

Selassie names new minister

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Ethiopia's rebellious soldiers forced Emperor Haile Selassie to name a new prime minister Thursday and grant pay raises demanded during three days of nonviolent mutiny.

The emperor went on nationwide radio to announce he had asked Endakachew Makonnen, a 47-year-old diplomat who had been telecommunications minister, to form a new government. Selassie called for calm and promised no reprisals against the mutineers.

There was no immediate reaction from the noncommissioned officers' committee that led the revolt involving nearly all Ethiopia's 40,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Coal miners continue to strike

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Some 17,000 southern West Virginia coal miners continued a work boycott Thursday in protest of short gasoline supplies as their union leaders sought state government aid. Most mines in southeastern Virginia were open Thursday as emergency gasoline supplies flowed into the area, but absenteeism remained high, mine owners said.

The movement in West Virginia that has cost steel mills and utilities more than 175,000 tons of coal daily began Monday in McDowell County with miners simply staying away from work because, they contended, they couldn't get enough gasoline to drive to work.

Thursday, however, the West Virginia Coal Association said the shutdown movement was being spread into Logan and Boone counties south of here by pickets protesting fuel allocation policies. A few pickets were also reported at some mines in McDowell County.

The association also said that while miners claimed they couldn't get to work, there was no unusual absenteeism among office and supervisory staff members.

United Mine Workers Workers President Arnold Miller sent UMW Safety Director Steve Liming into the state to meet with miners in the stricken area.

Thursday, Liming and other union officials met behind closed doors with Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. in efforts to gain additional gasoline allocations for the area and to seek changes in sales policies.

Stolen jewels involved

A Sedalia man who was sentenced to a year in the Pettis County jail last month was arrested in Kansas City Wednesday night in a police raid on a house.

Taken into custody was Richard McCue, 22, South Highway 65.

A U.S. marshal and a special Kansas City police squad arrested four men, including McCue, at the house and later said they recovered $12,000 of the loot from two jewelry store robberies in New York City last week.

The evidence against McCue was to be taken before the Jackson County prosecutor Thursday afternoon, a police spokesman said.

McCue was sentenced by a Circuit Court jury Jan. 31 after he was found guilty on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer allowed McCue to remain free on $1,000 bond after his jury trial until a motion by his attorney for a new trial was ruled on by the court.

Red means right turn; after stop

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond signed into law Thursday a bill permitting right turns on red lights.

The governor said the signing was delayed to give cities time to enact ordinances prohibiting such turns. The old law prohibited right turns on red lights except where cities allowed it. Now, it will allow right turns on red lights throughout the state unless there is a sign prohibiting it.

The bill was approved in the special legislative sessions ending Feb. 1. The law went into effect when the governor signed it, meaning it affected Thursday afternoon's homebound commuter traffic.

Break-in attempt results in gun injury for man

A Marshall man, Larry Verlin Sylvester, 25, was shot in the leg early Thursday following an apparent break-in at a Sedalia home.

Sylvester and John Thomas Hood, 18, Houstonia, were allegedly involved in a break-in shortly after midnight Thursday at the home of Barbara Johnson, 802 North Missouri.

Miss Johnson told police that when she came home around midnight, she found Sylvester coming out of her bedroom with an armload of men's and women's clothing. She said he ran from the house and headed north through an open field. She also said she shot at Sylvester with a .22 caliber rifle.

However, assistant Police Chief Charles Knapp said police have not recovered the weapon. He said it was "not clear at this time" just who shot Sylvester or the type of weapon used. He also said police weren't sure whether more than one person was in the Johnson home at the time of the shooting. He said the incident is still under investigation.

Knapp said Sylvester was apprehended near the REA Building on North Highway 65 and taken to the police station for investigation of breaking and entering a home. He said apparently someone had informed the Highway Patrol that an injured man was walking on North Highway 65. Sylvester was taken into custody by police officers and a member of the Highway Patrol.

Information obtained from Sylvester resulted in the arrest of Hood, Knapp said. Hood was at his home in Houstonia and drove to the police station after police called him by telephone.

Knapp said both men were released Thursday evening because no charges were filed. Information on the incident has been turned over the Craig Cassing, assistant prosecuting attorney. Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming was out of town Thursday.

Knapp also said that the clothing, valued at approximately $350, was later recovered from a creek about six miles northeast of Sedalia. Police said Hood told officers where the items could be found.

In other police news, Janet Vinyard, 212 1/2 South Ohio told police that a wrist watch and seven necklaces, worth $120 collectively, and $9 in cash were taken from her home sometime Wednesday while she was at work.

There was no sign of forcible entry.

Sedalian arrested in raid

McCue failed to show up for the hearing on the motion, which was scheduled for Feb. 14. His bond was later forfeited.

In the incident Wednesday night, Kansas City police said five men of his tactical unit moved in when a U.S. marshal signaled them from inside the house.

The marshal reportedly was in the house to buy stolen jewelry.

Police said when the squad broke into the house, McCue put a pistol to the marshal's head and threatened to shoot him. McCue was overpowered by police. No one was injured.

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said he would issue a detainer on McCue when he knows what charges will be filed against him.

This means that if McCue posts bond on any charges against him in Jackson County, he would be returned to Pettis County.

McCue's conviction here stems from an incident Aug. 11 in which two Sedalia policemen arrested McCue after he allegedly had in his possession a switchblade knife with a five-inch blade.

After McCue failed to show up for his Feb. 14 hearing here, Judge Meyer issued a warrant for his arrest.

McCue is formerly of New York.

storage space, student personnel services, business office operations and community service programs. Davis feels that those services and activities will more than occupy present facilities, now bursting with both student and administrative activity.

"We're squeezed as tight as we can be squeezed right now," Davis said. Mrs. Hibdon recalled that many students refer to the present campus "lovingly as Plywood U." She stressed that she felt school spirit and pride through the first six years had been high, but added that the community and area could probably find more reason to get involved with junior college activities and benefits through a permanent campus.

"My concept of education," she said, "is that a community college is an extension of the public school system. In effect, a kindergarten through grade 14 concept. Education should be a never-ending endeavor. You should be able to start and stop without penalties to retrain. That's one area where we can be very helpful."

President Davis, Dean Hibdon and other school officials are hopeful that school services can soon be offered under better conditions, and that the "Plywood U" label, along with the crowded conditions, will become history.

Judith Trotsky

A long, hard climb up?

NEW YORK — How does a nice girl from a quiet Brooklyn neighborhood grow up to become an author?

Judith Trotsky took the long way around, paving the road with excuses as to why she couldn't make it. Until it got to be too much.

"I had always wanted to be a writer," says Miss Trotsky. "When I go out of journalism school I started working as a reporter. But I hated it because you have to be too aggressive in order to get anywhere financially and career-wise."

Miss Trotsky then decided to try for an editorial job and was hired by TV Guide to obtain program listings from the TV networks. "For that you had to have a degree," she says disdainfully.

"That job got me interested in television, though," she adds, "and for about 1½ years I labored under the delusion that I could just go ahead and write for television." Her defeatist attitude convinced her she couldn't do it. "So I got a job at CBS as a secretary."

The job did turn out to have some scope. "I was secretary to a film researcher," says Miss Trotsky, "and I became interested in that so I learned the business." Rather than wait for a promotion at the network she quit CBS and began to look for film research jobs. Eventually she built quite a successful business as a freelancer, "but I still wanted to write," she says.

"Most of the time there is no latitude for a researcher creatively. There is usually a script indicating the need for certain stock footage. The producer-director gives you the script and says, 'find me those things.' So you go into a film library and select relevant scenes which are later put together by the editors."

So why wait 11 years to quit? "Maybe it was a combination of feeling helpless and being seduced by the pay," she says. "I was making $100 a day per client."

An assignment concerning black leaders, to be sold to schools, made her realize that there were many great speeches that had never been heard. "So I came up with the idea of making films based on these speeches, outlining the various black political philosophies."

This led to her decision, in 1971, to write her first published book, 'Love Songs From the Boogeymen.' "It is autobiographical," she explains. "Working with those black films led me to examine my own prejudices, including the prejudice against myself, my own feeling of being helpless as an individual in a very complex society."

The book deals with the parallel she found in her life with what the civil rights movement brought to the surface when blacks began to challenge society: "None of us get anywhere until we start challenging principles that we've always accepted."

So, many years removed from her Brooklyn upbringing and after countless job trials, an author was born, with a little help from TV.

TV scout reports

Richard Roundtree — Shaft — is left-handed. But not completely. He plays a lot of tennis and, curiously, he plays with his left hand but serves with his right.

TV enters insane season

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — "This is the insane season in television," said one of video's inmates, Danny Arnold.

The season he was referring to is that time of the year — generally from January to March — when the various producers and studios and networks film pilot shows, hoping that they will be fit into the next fall's schedule.

Arnold, long one of TV's more successful show creators and producers, is up to his husky shoulders in pilots. He originally took on three development deals — two for ABC and one for NBC — and two of those went forward to the pilot film stage.

"Then," he says, "out of left field an old project with Sheldon Leonard for CBS was reactivated. Suddenly I find myself with three pilots to do."

He has to see to the script, the casting, the sets and costumes. He has to hire crews and then oversee the filming. And all three have to be finished in time to be handed over to the networks so they can buy or reject the ideas by mid-April.

His three shows are:

The Life and Times of Capt. Barney Miller, for ABC. He wrote it with Ted Flicker. It stars Hal Linden (who appeared in the Broadway revival of "Pajama Game") and is a satire about a police captain.

The Barbara Eden Show for NBC.

The Roadrunner for CBS, which costars Raoul Julia (who won a Tony Award for "Two Gentlemen of Verona") and Tony Perez (who was the Puerto Rican on Calucci's Department).

Arnold is taking a chance with The Life and Times of Capt. Barney Miller because of its satirical flavor. Satire has never been a big TV commodity. Arnold knows this very well because he was the man behind My World and Welcome to It.

"But that's the way my mind works," he says. "I was bitter when My World went off. I was bitter about the network treatment of it."

"For a while, after that, I said that TV comedy had to be hard and obvious, on an emotional level to shake the audience's sensibilities. Subtle comedy was going by the boards."

But his bitterness has waned and he's ready to try again. He still feels that, basically, the public prefers violence and that any appeal to the intellect automatically limits the audience. Still, he's going forward with his satire.

He believes that comedy will make a strong comeback, on the wings of our national problems.

"The half-hour comedy form," he says, "is the bread and butter of TV. It's a relief from the violence of the news. I feel comedy will have a great resurgence in the next few years — we'll need it."

He thinks one reason for the comedy comeback he foresees is that TV is running out of blockbuster movies to put on. The networks will have to turn more and more to their own product — which means the old comedy-variety type shows.

Outraged

Was the TV movie Outrage, starring Robert Culp, a true story? — Dan Clowes, Chicago, Ill.

It was based on something that really did happen in a Southern California community but it was dramatized for the film.

Musicians featured in Sedalia

Popular entertainers continue to be featured in Sedalia's night spots this week. Among those offering a relaxing touch to day's end here are:

Around the Fireside

Featuring the Bob Phillips and Nancy Knight Show from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Monday, Thursday and Friday. Last week of their engagement here.

Holiday Inn

Knight's Hideaway Lounge, Friday and Saturday, will feature "Rockytop Ltd." from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. On March 6, "Finders Keepers" will return to entertain patrons.

Starring role

Meredith Baxter stars as an adopted girl searching for her real parents in "The Stranger Who Looks Like Me," a contemporary drama on the ABC

Television Network's "Wednesday Movie of the Week." The movie can be viewed at 7:30 p.m. March 6 on KCBJ-TV and KMBC-TV.

TV Scout Reports

John Denver made his second dramatic appearance on a recent episode of NBC's Sunday Mystery Movie: McCloud. The singer had a fight scene with Robert Sampson, the actor who used to play Bridget's priest-brother on Bridget Loves Bernie.

Peace-loving Denver couldn't bring himself to hit Sampson in the mouth, as the script called for. He had to be coached by a stuntman in the proper hitting technique. Even then the shot was carefully masked because Denver just isn't a brawler.

During the taping of Highlights of the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus show, Flip Wilson had a bit with Michu, the 33-inch-tall man billed as the world's smallest man.

"Michu," said Flip, during a break, "there's one thing I've wanted to know. As a kid, did you have shrinking pains?"

Now that she has her own show, Esther Rolle will probably move from New York to the Los Angeles area.

"But," she says, with a grin, "I hope I never go Hollywood."

Egyptian's ideas move an industry

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Twenty years ago a young Egyptian boy, scared and lonely, arrived in Los Angeles to study cinema at U.S.C. Today, Fouad Said is a major force in Hollywood.

He began by revolutionizing movie-making with his Cinemobiles, the compactly-packed trucks that contain everything needed to make a movie, all on one chassis. Today he's gone further. He's turning his attention to movie-making, and his new firm, Cine Artists International, is grinding out the features.

He heads a junior-grade conglomerate, of which Cinemobile is the bulwark but he lets others run that mostly. He's more interested in producing these days.

Said is bullish about the film industry. He thinks movies are booming and will continue to boom. He says that, at the moment, there are 10 blockbusters playing in the nation's theaters — from "The Exorcist" down — and that, he says, is more winners than have ever been out at once in Hollywood history. It's a sign of good times here, of better times coming.

The thing is," Said says, "that the public will go to see good things and the producers are making good things. But there can be no more junk movies. The public won't stand still for them — they can see them at home on TV."

He says Cine Artists International plans to churn out five or six films a year. It started, modestly and bloodily, a year or so back with "Across 110th Street." It wasn't much of a movie but it was on the nose as far as coinciding with public taste of the moment and it made a lot of money.

"It was a whammo picture," he says. In his vernacular, "whammo" means a film full of action and blood.

The next couple of his films were not too successful — "Hickey and Boggs" and "The Deadly Trackers." But now he is certain he's back on the track and soon he has two coming out he's sure will be winners. One is "Bobby and Rose," which is in the "American Graffiti" genre, and "The Jones Boys," which he says is a "funny-whammo" flick.

Said, who is currently working for his doctorate in business administration at U.S.C., looks at the movie business as a businessman, as well as an artist.

"One thing that is hurting movies today," he says, "is that such a high percentage — as much as 50 per cent in many cases — goes to talent. I can't think of any other business that has that handicap, where half of your revenue goes to a source that does not plow it back into the business."

Unlike some of today's film makers, Said likes to use name stars in his films. That's because he keeps an eye on the three sources of movie income — domestic sales, foreign sales (that avenue likes U.S. stars) and, ultimately, a TV sale. He says, with a whammo picture, the income from a film can be evenly divided among those three sources.

Change in role not a big thing

Broadway bound

Actress Valerie Harper is taking a few months off from Rhoda and television to star on Broadway in "Thieves" at the Broadhurst where this picture was taken. The play opens March 21 — when she will already have vanished from the Mary Tyler Moore network serial that has made her a video personality. Her television role will resurface in September in her own show, "Rhoda." Miss Harper, who started out in show business as a dancer, is not new to stage drama: she already had a string of stage credits by the time she began TV work.

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Valerie Harper is temporarily changing from Rhoda Morgenstern, TV's all-American Jewish bachelor girl, to Sally Kramer, Jewish stage wife in domestic crisis.

The casting might suggest that the actress is succumbing to an ethnic role rut. Nonsense, comes the swift reply.

"They're not at all alike — Rhoda is from the Bronx, Sally from the lower East Side. And when I'm away from Rhoda, I don't do anything like Rhoda. My talk has a flavor of New York, but certainly not the Bronx."

Having settled that to her own satisfaction, the lady of dark tresses and green eyes recalls a public life that began with an appearance as a snowflake at age 5 in an interschool pageant and crested through four seasons as the breezy chum on Mary Tyler Moore's network serial.

Miss Harper vanishes in early March from that show, to resurface in mid-September in her own CBS situation-comedy, naturally entitled "Rhoda."

During the interim, she comes to Broadway as Sally Kramer in "Thieves," a marital caprice by Herb Gardner, best remembered for "A Thousand Clowns." Directed by Michael Bennett and costarring Richard Mulligan, the production opens March 21 at the Broadhurst.

"My manager set this up for a change of pace during the TV hiatus," Miss Harper explains. "Now I love the play so much I already worry about leaving in June." The TV cameras start taping in July.

Before becoming a video personality who draws a lot of fan mail but who doesn't "think a lot about my image," Miss Harper scored a string of stage credits.

"I don't expect any problems in terms of being heard," is her answer to the difference between performing in a mike-studded studio and projecting in a large auditorium.

After the usual apprentice tribulations of work as a telephone canvasser and hat-check girl, she progressed on the now-dimmed Great White Way from three musicals, "Take Me Along," "Wildcat," and "Subways Are for Sleeping," into the improvisations of "Story Theater" and the dramatic rigors of "Something Different."

The Harper dream was originally of ballerina fame.

"I always used to dance around the house," Valerie recalls from the period of recurrent family travel. She was born in Suffern, N. Y., a suburb of the metropolis. Her father, Howard Harper, was a sales supervisor for an electrical supply firm.

The family was Catholic and Miss Harper went to parochial schools. She says she's no longer as enthusiastic about religion.

By age 6 she was in dancing school. While still in high school in Jersey City, where her parents, older sister and younger brother finally settled, Valerie joined the corps de ballet at Radio City Music Hall.

"I don't want to say I'm moody, though I used to be," Miss Harper says. "I think everybody passes through moodiness. For me it was like a late adolescence. I danced through my teens. I never dated. No proms. Nothing."

On Friday nights at the movies with girl friends she tried cigarettes. She doesn't smoke now or drink.

During her first Broadway chorus job, a friend suggested drama lessons "and that opened up a whole area I realized I wanted to get into."

"The fun of being an actor is you can be someone else without being insane," she says.

"I'd like to do a lot of different things, but I really got lucky with Rhoda." The role that changed her life resulted from a routine audition call.

"It has meant working steadily instead of scrabbling around. Rejection is a usual part of this business. Steady work has got to do something to the psyche. I find myself growing in self-esteem and strength."

Her husband of nine years, actor-writer Dick Schaal, "says I'm happier, freer, calmer now than I've ever been in our life together. I thought it was advancing years at first, but it's being able to act."

Miss Harper doesn't claim to have yet attained the ninth circle of temperamental Nirvana, however — "The game is far from over." Questions about age stir instant edginess, and she's highly protective about the feminist cause.

"I'm not an activist — I'm sitting with you, aren't I?" she replies when women's lib comes up in the conversation. Asked about year of birth, she fends with: "You wouldn't ask me that if I was a man." Told that would probably be unnecessary because the date would already be on public record, she says: "I don't believe that." An educated guess, based on cross-reference fragments, puts her at about 36.

As for emancipation: "Sisterhood is getting more powerful. I hope brotherhood is, too. We should all get back to humanhood, that's the most important. No, no, that's not philosophy. You asked, I answered, that's all. If you want shorter answers, ask shorter questions."

Getting back to Rhoda, Miss Harper feels that the role generated such wide audience responsiveness because "there are a lot of people, men, too, that live single and are happy. It's not like, 'I'm not married and I must die, my life is over.' That's the big message and you're not banged over the head with it."

Quiet stroll

Barbara Streisand and Robert Redford are shown in this scene from "The Way We Were," a Ray Stark-Sydney Pollack production now showing at the State Fair Twin Cinema.

Coming here

Julie Christie is as yet unaware, in this scene, of the terrifying fate that awaits her when she comes under the strange power of psychic force in "Don't Look Now." Donald Sutherland co-stars in Daphne du Maurier's macabre horror tale opening Wednesday at the Fox Theater.

Conrad Bain

Waited long for fame and fortune

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Like most good comedy series, CBS' Maude is an ensemble production. Bea Arthur, of course, is the star but the show's success is due largely to the fact that she is surrounded by a group of excellent actors.

One who helps make the series is Conrad Bain, who plays Maude's neighbor, Dr. Arthur Harmon. His sly playing is a big plus and the nation has lately become very Conrad Bain-conscious.

For Bain, this business of fame and fortune is all new and surprising. After a 25-year career as an actor, now, suddenly, he's a star.

"I never really wanted to be rich or famous," he says. "I just wanted to work and I did. I raised three kids and supported my wife in reasonable comfort."

He acted all over during that quarter-century — on Broadway, in various repertory companies, on TV and in film. He worked more than he didn't work. But until now, he was just another face in the crowd. Today, however, his face is so well-known that it's cramping his life style.

"Part of me is rebelling against my loss of anonymity," he says. "and I know which part it is. It's the part that is the actor who likes to observe people. I can no longer be an unnoticed eye."

He used to wander around, the unnoticed eye, watching people and the way they act and react. It was for him part of his acting research that constant studying of ordinary folks. He can't do it any more. The folks know him now.

"We've considered getting me a wig so I can still go out," he says, "but I don't like that idea."

He says being a star this year interfered with his Christmas shopping. He went to one of Los Angeles' leading department stores but was so surrounded by autograph seekers that he beat a hasty retreat before he could buy a thing.

Greg graduates

Greg (Barry Williams) faces high school graduation day with a hug from mom (Florence Henderson), a smile from Alice (Ann B. Davis) and a "Hair Brained Scheme" from his kid brother on ABC's "The Brady Bunch." The program will be aired at 7 p.m. March 8 on KCBJ-TV.

Ask TV scout

Picture this

The picture behind Kojak's desk seems to resemble Telly Savalas. Can you identify the picture and the uniform? — Mrs. P.M. Bichard, Leesburg, Fla.

The uniform is that of a World War I Greek military officer and the inscription on the photo reads Captain Theocrates Kojakzakias. The character is supposed to be Kojak's father. Word is that Telly posed for the picture. According to Kojak's biography, when his father arrived in the U.S. in 1919, immigration officers had trouble with the name Kojakzakias and shortened it.

Mister-taken identity

Is the man who played the cook in the movie "The Cowboys," with John Wayne the same actor who plays either Mr. Jefferson or Mr. Jefferson's brother in All in the Family? — Larry Herrell, Littlefield, Tex.

No, three different actors are involved. Roscoe Lee Browne played the cook in the Wayne film. Mr. Jefferson is Sherman Hemsley and Mrs. Jefferson's brother is Mel Stewart, who was written out of All in the Family so he could be a regular on Roll Out. When The Cowboys becomes a TV series shortly, Moses Gunn will play the cook, which makes him actor number four.

Send a grapefruit

I would appreciate it if you could send me the address of James Cagney. — Joan Mulrenin, Chicago, Ill.

Why don't you write him in care of American Film Institute, 501 Doheny Road, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90210. They are planning a tribute dinner to him which CBS will be filming and running as a special in March.

TV misses a minority

By KICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Television has been praised for the ways it has progressed in its use of blacks. But what about the medium's use of Jews?

"Something needs to be done," says Milton Senn, who is the western regional director of B'nai Brith's Anti-Defamation League. "On today's TV, there isn't one real hero who is Jewish. Look at all the lawyer and doctor shows — not one is Jewish."

The facts bear him out. The heroes of the TV series bear Anglo-Saxon names like Cannon, Jones, Ironside, Dillon, Ramsey and Erskine, with a sprinkling of blacks and Poles and even a half-Chinese. Not a Jewish name around.

There have been a few situation comedies which included Jewish characters, even one (Needles and Pins) which is almost all-Jewish but that features, I feel, caricature Jews. There is not one heroic Jewish figure on TV even in the fields of law and medicine, which traditionally have many Jewish practitioners.

"The Jewish presence is invisible on TV," says producer David Dortort. Dortort used to make Bonanza which starred a Jewish actor (Lorne Green) as Ben Cartwright. "Who do Jewish kids have to root for? TV gives them nobody."

That used to be the rallying cry of the blacks and with justification. Now they have their TV heroes — Shaft, Tenafl — but still there are no Jewish star parts.

This is curious, because there are so many Jews in commanding positions with the networks and studios. One of them, producer David Victor (Marcus Welby and Owen Marshall) thinks it's because they are playing it safe.

"They would like not to fragment the audience," Victor says. "There is a need for the widest possible audience and they don't want to offend anyone."

But, still, there are the Banaceks and Kojaks and Tomas and Columbos, all clearly ethnic types. And these seem to be proliferating.

While none of the networks would comment officially on this question, one network official did say, although he would not permit his name to be used, that they try to avoid using heroes of a specific nationality or religion.

"Out of the 900 shows that have been on TV," he said,

"there may have been ten heroes with an identifiable ancestry. We've used a few Italians to offset the bad publicity we got for having so many Italian heavies. We try to keep all our heroes middle of the road."

Many Jewish actors are playing non-Jewish heroes. On Dortort's Bonanza, three of the original four Cartwrights were Jewish — Greene, Michael Landon and Pernell Roberts. Only the late Dan Blocker was not. Peter Falk plays an Italian. Arthur Hill plays the very Anglo-Saxon Owen Marshall.

Senn says that such sins of omission are the big problems with TV, not only in its relationship to Jews but to all minorities.

Actress had TV series idea and it sold

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Marsh appeared puzzled when told it's almost impossible for unknown writers to sell a TV series idea because networks and producers fear plagiarism suits.

"Because they think somebody will have pinched the idea?" the London-born actress asked. "Funny. I didn't know about that at all."

It's just as well. Four years ago, she and another English actress, Eileen Atkins, had an idea for a TV series. It was her first such idea and they sold their script on the first try.

The series is "Upstairs, Downstairs," a lively saga about the upper and lower classes in an Edwardian-era household. It proved a big hit when it first appeared on English commercial TV in 1971.

Thirteen episodes from the series — 26 in all have been made — currently are making the rounds on public TV in the United States. They're getting excellent reviews, to the delight of Miss Marsh, a slender woman in her 30s.

"Well, I wasn't surprised because on the first time around you don't know how difficult it is," she said in her soft, lilting accent. "It all happened very easily."

When she and Miss Atkins first conceived the master plan for "Upstairs, Downstairs," and put it on paper, they took the standard precaution of copyrighting the script. Then Miss Marsh shelled out a few coins to join the Writer's Guild in London.

The next problem, of course, was whom to see about getting the thing on the telly.

"We thought if we take it ourselves, with our names on it, girls, actresses, to a company, they'll think, 'Oh, those silly girls,' and it'll be read by a reader's reader," she said, referring to the lowest of the low in

She acts, she writes

Actress Jean Marsh, shown during a New York interview, has written poetry for her own amusement and now finds her writing talents in demand almost as much as her acting ability. She plays a major role in "Upstairs, Downstairs," the series now on public TV which she created with actress Eileen Atkins. After the success of the British-produced account of an Edwardian-era household she has started to get assignments for newspaper and magazine stories.

television's script departments.

"So I said, let's take it to this man, John Whitney, with whom I'd worked the previous year and who I knew had a television production company.

"And when I told him about the idea on the telephone, he and his partner, John Hawkesworth now the series' producer, liked it immediately."

"But the funny thing is that when they took it to London Weekend Television a commercial station, the person who bought it was a woman."

But Miss Marsh, who appears in the series as Rose, the head parlor maid, said she isn't unhappy about her intermediaries. Although she and Miss Atkins only own 50 per cent of the show, "I'd rather have 50 per cent of something than 100 per cent of nothing at all."

Among other things, the money has enabled the auburn-haired authoress to buy a home that the very thirsty might consider paradise. It's a converted pub just outside London at High Wycombe.

Prior to her first and biggest sale, she said she's written poetry for her own amusement, but never tried to sell it.

"I'd always say, 'Oh, I'm an actress and that's that,'" she said. "But once I'd sold 'Upstairs, Downstairs,' I started to get commissions to do things in journalism."

Miss Marsh winked. "See, I'm your rival." She laughed, then explained that this year she's doing articles for an English television magazine and a newspaper and has done a short story to be published in April.

Journalists often are a rowdy lot, ditto fiction writers. Is she certain she likes being in their ranks?

"I'd like to write more," she said without hesitation. "But I don't ever think I'll give up acting because I really think of myself as an actress. But writing feeds you as an actress enormously."

How so?

"I had a very bad education," she said. "I come from a really very poor working-class family and my education stopped when I was quite young."

"I'm not uncomfortable about the use of language, but it's a department, writing is. I never thought I'd be able to do. So the confidence of having things published in newspapers actually feeds my confidence as an actress."
